VOCE LEFT OUT OF NOTTS TEAM ON LAST DAY!

Angry Demonstration At Trent Bridge

SUFFERING FROM "SORE SHINS"

WILD RUMOURS OF CLUB DISSENSION

SENSATIONAL NEW TURN TO DISPUTE

LONDON, Aug. 14.

THE VOCE CONTROVERSY, CONFINED HITHERTO TO DEBATE ON WHETHER HE SHOULD HAVE BEEN CHOSEN FOR ENGLAND'S FINAL TEST TEAM, TOOK A SENSATIONALLY FRESH TURN AT NOTTINGHAM TO-DAY.

Voce did not turn out this morning when the Australians resumed the second innings of their match against the Notts C. C. and a fairly large crowd, many present having attended largely to see Voce's leg theory exploited in what must have been an even more dramatic atmosphere than Saturday, showed their displeasure unmistakably.

A noisy demonstration occurred and recurred during the morning, a large section of the crowd yelling in chorus: "WHERE'S VOCE!"

STRAINED ATMOSPHERE ALL DAY

A strained atmosphere persisted throughout the day, accentuated by the circulation of all sorts of rumours.

After the crowd's demonstration when they saw Voce was not in the field, the Nottinghamshire club issued a statement to the effect that Voce was unable to turn out as he is suffering from sore shins.

VIGOROUS HOOTING.

A section of the crowd were not impressed by this explanation and imagined that Voce's absence was due to an Australian protest following the success of Voce in his leg-theory bowling on Saturday.

They hooted vigorously while the Australians were batting, their temper hardly being improved when Brown and Kippax got together after two fairly early bowling successes and treated the Notts bowling lightly.

Finally, the Australians declared with Brown and Kippax still undefeated.

FRESH SCENE.

A fresh scene occurred immediately after Nottingham had gone out to bat.

Right at the beginning of the innings, Darling bowled an over-pitched ball which narrowly missed the batsman, the incident, trivial as it was, causing an uproar and catcalls about "body-line" from the Nottingham supporters.

DENIAL OF RESIGNATIONS.

Meanwhile, all sorts of rumours were circulating and the club had to issue another official statement in the afternoon, denying a report that several members of the club committee had tendered their resignations.

THE MATCH.

The match, much the least interesting of the events of the day, ended in a draw in favour of the Australians.

Brown scored 100 not out and Kippax 75 not out in Australia's second innings, Woodfull applying the closure with only two wickets down and a lead of 274 runs. Notts played out time leisurely and had scored 128 for 6 when stumps were drawn. During the afternoon, Grimmett took his hundredth wicket of the present tour.

The close of play scores were:

Australia: 237 (Woodfull 81; Voce 8 for 66) and 230 for 2 wickets declared. (Brown 100 not out; Kippax 75 not out).

Notts: 183 (Grimmett, 4 for 70) and 128 for 6 wickets.—Reuter.

$150,000 RANSOM DEMAND

London, Ont., Aug. 14.

The clutching hand of kidnapers, which has recently developed into a serious social menace in the United States, is extending across the border into Canada.

One of the wealthiest brewers in the country, Mr. John Labatt, was abducted by a gang to-day while motoring between London (Ontario) and Sarnia.

Details of the outrage became known when a note was delivered at his home demanding the immediate payment of ransom.

The note was signed by an individual describing himself as "Three Fingers Abe," and it demands the payment of $150,000 within twenty-four hours.

The victim of the outrage, Mr. John Labatt is sixty years of age.—Reuter.

BRITAIN'S FINANCES

IN COMFORTABLE POSITION

£4,000,000 SHORT OF LAST YEAR

London, Aug. 14.

Britain's financial position to-day is only four and a half millions sterling on the wrong side as compared with last year, despite the remission of taxation and the restoration of the cuts.

In the last week, incidentally, receipts exceeded expenditure by nearly £6,000,000.

Exchequer return of receipts and expenditure during the current financial year up to August 11th, shows that, excluding self-balancing items, the total ordinary revenue receipts last week amounted to £10,805,746 and the total ordinary expenditure to £4,912,492.

Income tax collected during the week amounted to £3,643,000 and Customs and Excise represented £4,069,000.

The total yield of ordinary revenue for the financial year to date is £205,097,436, as compared with £207,668,091 collected in the corresponding period of the previous year. Ordinary expenditure to date is £255,819,570 which compares with £253,729,882 at the corresponding date of 1933.—British Wireless.

WILD STORIES OF "RED" ATTACK ON FOOCHOW

FALSIFIED BY NAVAL REPORTS

NEAREST FORCE 20 MILES AWAY

AT LIENKONG

GRADUALLY BEING SUPPRESSED

Highly coloured exaggerations of the situation in the vicinity of Foochow have been circulated since last evening.

Actually, while there appears to be an undercurrent of unrest among the populace, the city is perfectly quiet and it is stated that the Communists in Fukien are gradually being suppressed.

One report, published below, suggests that the Communists are battering away at the walls of Foochow.

Naval wireless messages from the commander of H.M.S. Witch show that there is absolutely no truth in any report of any fighting in the immediate vicinity of Foochow.

TWENTY MILES AWAY.

The latest naval message declares that the small force of Communists (one to two thousand strong) who were reported a week ago to have approached close to the city have been driven north to Lienkong and that the other group which captured the town of Shlukow—a little previously have now been driven back towards Yen-ping.

The nearest Communists to the city, according to British naval intelligence, are twenty miles away, to the north-east and these probably do not exceed 1,500 in number.

Following is a Reuter report from Nanking received this morning, apparently derived from Chinese sources. It should be treated with the greatest reserve.

"FIERCE FIGHTING."

Nanking, Aug. 15.

The situation at Foochow is easier with the arrival of Government reinforcements comprising the Forty-Ninth Division.

Fierce fighting is going on round the walls of Foochow, while the forts within the city are opening heavy guns, shelling the Communists' positions.

The Chinese warships guarding the city are laying off Wanshou-chiao.

The Government reinforcements were immediately rushed into the front lines in a vigorous counter-attack against the Communists. The Government authorities are confident that the Government troops will be able to repulse the Communists and hold Foochow.—Reuter.

H.M.S. Whitshed left Hongkong for Foochow yesterday to relieve H.M.S. Witch and is expected to arrive early this morning.

NEW ORLEANS SCANDAL

CITY AND STATE STILL AT WAR

COURT GRANTS INJUNCTION

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1934. Received August 15, 2.20 a.m.)

New York, Aug. 14.

There were two fresh developments in the extraordinary political feud between the city authorities of New Orleans and the Huey Long government of the State of Louisiana.

A special session of the State Legislature was called at Baton Rouge last night for the express purpose of passing emergency legislation to deprive the officials of New Orleans of all power.

In New Orleans, the Mayor's suit for an injunction against the State Militia was successful, the Judge granting a permanent injunction against the militia retaining occupation of the office of the Registrar of Voters.

POLITICAL FEUD.

It will be recalled that the militia seized the office after battering down the doors, acting on the orders of Governor Oscar Allen, a henchman of Huey Long, on the pretext that the city was permitting the illegal registration of voters and had violated the law by moving the office from the City Hall.

The political fight is the result of a feud between Senator Huey Long and the Mayor of New Orleans, Mr. Walmsley, which has been carried on ever since the last election in the City when the Huey Long clique were defeated.—United Press.

HOTEL TRAGEDY

GERMAN COUPLE POISONED

AGE OLD STORY

A German man and girl who were found dead at an hotel in London recently were the subject of an inquest at Westminster, when it was established that they died from poisoning.

They had registered at the hotel in the names of Mr. and Mrs. Thimann, but the girl was afterwards identified as Ursula Klee (21). The man's Christian name was Max, and he was 31.

The first name called at the inquest was that of Robert Kolen, who was stated to be the employer of the couple. Mr. Kolen, however, would not give evidence, as he considered his knowledge of English was not sufficient, and there was no interpreter present.

Evidence of identification was then given by P. S. Nicholls, the Coroner's officer. He said he was present when Mr. Kolen attended at the mortuary and identified the bodies as Ursula Klee, a laboratory assistant, and Max Thimann, a resident of Cologne, whose wife at the moment was resident in Potsdam.

The officer added that Thimann came to this country in June on a demonstration course for a Liverpool firm, and Klee came to London on June 30. In her passport book there was the return half of an excursion ticket, and it looked as if she came to England to join Thimann.

TWO LETTERS FOUND.

At the hotel where they were found possession was taken of two letters and two glasses which smelt of cyanide of potassium.

One of the glasses was quite close to the girl, and she had obviously drunk from it. She was lying fully dressed on the bed, and the man was lying on the edge of the bed as if he had collapsed on his back. The position in which they were found was consistent with their having drunk from separate glasses. The door of the room had been locked.

Two letters in the man's handwriting were produced. They were written in German, and the Coroner read the translation. The first, he said, was addressed to the man's parents and it read:—

"My dear, dear parents,—I shall give you very great sorrow through the step I am going to take. I am going to ask you to forgive me. I see in this step that I am going to take the right one. You will have the comfort that it is an act which is an expression of my own free will. Forgive me.—I owe you much more than I can ever express or say clearly in words. I wish you a joyous farewell, which will leave no great pain behind.—Always your grateful son, Max."

The other letter was to the man's wife and read:—

WORKED TOGETHER.

"My Dear Pet,—Forgive me all, although I know it is more than I have any right to ask, but to make amends for the wrong I have done you I know no other way against the fate which is pursuing me. I cannot fight. As penance I see only this step, which I am taking of my own free will and full knowledge of what I am doing. I kiss you.—Max."

The Coroner's officer gave evidence of a conversation he heard between the Deputy-Coroner and Mr. Kolen, in which it was stated that Thimann and the girl were working together in the same laboratory near Cologne and a love affair had developed between them. The man had been sent to England by his firm to demonstrate some chemical apparatus in Liverpool. Far from being insane, the man was extremely clever and able, and there was no

Mix all the dry ingredients well together, the gammon being chopped or minced. Bind all with the two beaten eggs, form into a sausage shape, and place on a scalded, floured cloth. Roll it up, tie the ends securely with tape, put it into fast boiling water (put a plate at the bottom of the saucepan to prevent sticking), and boil steadily for 2½ hours. Untie the tapes, unroll the meat shape carefully, and leave till cold. When sending it to table, coat it thickly with the browned crumbs, place on a pretty dish, and garnish with slices of tomato and sprigs of bright green parsley. evidence whatever pointing to irregularity of his mind.

Mr. Stanley B. Till, the assistant manager of the Grosvenor Hotel, said the couple arrived together at the hotel on Monday. They engaged a room as man and wife, and the register was signed in the names of Max and Ursula Thimann. They were last seen alive on a Monday evening, when they left the hotel about a quarter to nine.

On the following evening the reception clerk informed witness that no reply could be obtained from their room by the maid, who wanted to clean it. They had had no food during the day, and nothing had been heard of them.

The door of the room was found bolted, and it was eventually forced. The curtains were still drawn, and the couple were dead on the bed.

A doctor stated there was nothing abnormal about the bodies. The woman was not an expectant mother.

The Coroner, summing-up, said this was a tragedy of a young German who came to this country to demonstrate a chemical process and was joined by the girl.

They stayed together as man and wife," he said. "For reasons

CHILDREN'S DIET

by That Thrived on Eels

"PREHISTORIC WAYS"

Children's diet was the chief topic discussed at a recent session of the National Conference on Maternity and Child Welfare, at Birmingham, and an M.O.H., who was of the opinion that babies were being fed on too invalid a diet, told of a child of seven months who thrived on eels.

Dr. Eric Pritchard, medical director of the Infants' Hospital, London, said that to reform the national dietary attention must be concentrated on the child. There appeared to be quite commonly an element of contrariness inherent in children, inducing them to hanker after forbidden things, and to show a distaste for those foisted upon them. Advantage of these inherent tendencies might be taken to press upon them to take the sort of food which one wished them ultimately to avoid, and make it difficult for them to obtain those things which were really good for them.

Dr. G. A. Auden, school medical officer of Birmingham, said that if they could centre their propaganda on increasing the consumption of milk in all classes, they would be doing great work in improving nutrition.

Dr. Waller, medical officer of health at St. Katharine's College, Poplar, speaking on "Diet After Babyhood," said that he did not believe anyone knew anything at all concerning the ideal diet for a baby. There was evidence that a boy could eat a wide range of foodstuffs and thrive.

Dr. Waller said that it was his opinion that babies were being fed on too invalid a diet. He was sceptical as to the advantage of allowing babies to feed only on milk. He had known of a mother giving her seven months old child eels, and it thrived on them.

which one can only assume they evidently made up their minds to commit suicide, and he left letters which confirmed that intention. The method they used was cyanide of potassium.

NOT NAZI REFUGEES.

"I think it is only right to say that statements have appeared in the Press that these two unfortunate people were refugees from the Nazi Government, but we have not the slightest evidence to that effect. There is nothing to show they had ever taken any part in politics at all.

"Instead of committing suicide for motives of fear of what would happen when they returned to Germany, it is just the age-old story of an illicit love and passion, which ended, as so often it does, in tragedy.

"It is possible they were both overtaken with remorse, and he wrote the letter to his wife which suggests that both had made up their minds that they should commit suicide.

"There is absolutely no evidence to show the state of their minds at the time, so I can do nothing else except record a verdict that they both died from the effects of potassium cyanide and that they both killed themselves, there being insufficient evidence to show the state of their minds."

SOPHIE KERR'S LATEST SUCCESS IN ROMANTIC PROBLEM FICTION "STAY OUT OF MY LIFE!"

CHAPTER XXIX

It was Mrs. Lowe who took charge of the situation. Pretending anxiety over Mrs. Jackson's baggage, she set her and Amy both to making inquiries. Then she took them back to Amy's home, talking all the while of trivialities.

Once there, Amy had to be busy and Mary Jackson put on an apron and helped. "It's nice to be in a kitchen again," she said. "I was getting sick of boarding houses and hotels. I may be pretty awkward at first. You were very good to let me come, Amy."

"I'm thankful you could come," Amy told her. "I couldn't shut up the house and stay with Mother and Father. They love me too much. They're so close to me it kills them to see me unhappy. You love Howard the most. I'm sure they're relieved in saying here. You understand. It's too much strain on all of us."

"My dear," said Mary Jackson, "I understand very well. Love is much harder to endure than hate, and what your parents feel for you I feel for Howard. If you knew, what it has cost me to leave him free and not hang on him and depend on him and simply clamp my life on him—it wasn't fun, you can believe it."

"Oh, why didn't you come sooner and be with him? I ought to have insisted—I'm so sorry! I didn't mean to crowd you out. Really I didn't think."

"No, I didn't want to come. I only wanted the one glimpse of him. I couldn't have stood any more length of time with him, any more than you can stand being with your parents. I'm selfish about Howard—I feel so outraged and—violent about his going into this war. Even when I think that there are hundreds and thousands of mothers who are giving their sons, it doesn't change my feeling. There's no consolation in other people's trouble for our own."

"That's exactly what I've been saying to myself, but I didn't say it out loud. I'm glad you said it. And I wished, I didn't tell you how much I wished and hoped that he'd be rejected—I mean by the physical examiners. I hope still that he won't be able to pass the air tests. Ground work isn't as dangerous as actual flying."

The two women exchanged wan smiles. "You didn't tell Howard that, I know," said Howard's mother.

"Of course not. I don't want to clamp on him any more than you do. But it was awful to keep still. And now—this empty house—and he won't be coming back to-night, nor to-morrow."

"But he'll be coming back sometime. There's that to think about," said Mary Jackson sturdily. And something in her voice reminded Amy that Mary Jackson's husband had died when he was not much older than Howard. It brought her out of her depth of self-commiseration with a sharp jerk and she gave Mary Jackson a fervent, penitential hug. "I won't make another moan, not even a small one," she said. "If I do I give you leave to beat me."

Her strength began to flow back her like a turn in a grave illness. She stopped thinking that Howard was away, but only that he was coming back.

The summer began to weave a definite pattern. After Commencement Marburg usually fell into a placid inertia, stirring only for small social events, but it was not so this year. So many Marburg boys had gone to the war that there was constant change—women taking over men's jobs, meetings, rallies, entertainments to raise money, families of soldiers to be looked after. Amy and Mary Jackson did what they could, and Amy realized her plan of a music class and took the organist post, which meant working twice on Sundays, and rehearsing the choir besides. She was very busy, but her life was actually lived in the letters she wrote to Howard and his letters to her. She waited for the postman feverishly.

And Howard wrote faithfully, even though most of his letters were by necessity very brief. He was well, he said, in spite of heat and hard work. He had passed his tests triumphantly. He was training for the air now. He hoped to get leave for a few days when he had won his wings. He wished he could fly back and land in their garden. "I dream about you in the garden," he wrote. "And I think of you every minute. You are always with me even when I'm working hardest." He sent her a photograph in his uniform, but she did not like it. He looked rather older and alien to her and she put it out of sight.

Miss Rosa came to see Mary Jackson soon after her arrival and the two women liked one another well enough to promote their slight kinship by blood into a familiar coyness. Since Miss Rosa's house was central and spacious, she folded up her bridge tables and turned her big parlour into a Red Cross workshop, with a grumbling good humour and a hidden pleasure to be once more active and in the thick of things. She had a war map and moved pins about on it with more gusto than accuracy. And it was Miss Rosa who brought Jane back into Amy's consciousness, through Mary Jackson's talking about that niece of hers, Jane, how clever she is, and how attractive and all that she's doing—and she must be rather extraordinary, for I take it Rosa's far from being a doing aunt, under any circumstances. You know her very well, didn't you?"

Amy was dressing Nancy, fresh and sweet from her afternoon nap, curling the ends of the child's hair over her finger in the way she liked to see them. "Oh yes," she said at last, "we were intimate friends. Jane and I. She is awfully clever, yes, and quite beautiful, dark and so alive!"

Mary Jackson went on. "Rosa told me all about the crush Jane had on Howard—Amy, dear, I'm not saying anything painful, am I? I understood that you knew all about it, and Rosa said frankly that Howard hadn't cared a snap about Jane and he told her so. Jane apparently took it rather badly, but she got over it right away, according to Rosa."

Amy brushed the last curl over and took out the blue ribbon to tie around Nancy's head. "It all seems a long time ago," she said slowly. "We were all much younger—and took ourselves so seriously. Miss Rosa and Jane were nice to Howard when he first came. Of course he didn't know anyone here, and he was in and out of the house a lot and Jane was rather crazy about him. No, it isn't painful to me now—I've sort of forgotten Jane. I don't think of her often—but it did disturb me at the time. I was fond of Jane—and then, I was so terribly in love with Howard."

She paused and continued more quickly. "Jane's changed a good bit. When she comes back to Marburg now she's rather gorgeous, grand clothes and talking about the big deals she's put through, you know. Captain of industry stuff—Marburg looks pretty dim and small to her now. And that's perfectly natural. There now, sweetie-pie—she spoke to Nancy—'you look very stylish! What do you want to do, play with your blocks, or come down and sing with Mother?'"

"Nancy will sing."

"And what will Nancy sing?" asked Mary.

"Nancy will sing for Muvver," declared the little girl.

"And I'll come and listen," said Mary. "Rosa says Jane will be coming again in the fall for a few days. I'm somewhat curious to see her."

"Well," said Amy, "Jane's always exciting and interesting to see and to hear, too. She's the only person I ever knew who—who made her own world—and lived in it without any special attention to reality. Not that I'm sure she's happier for it."

"She does sound interesting and exciting!"

"Yes," replied Amy, settling

Jane's child beside her on the piano bench, "Jane's all of that. Now come along. Miss Nancy—'A frog he would a-wooling go—' begin when Mother strikes the note."

And Nancy obediently began. As her voice rose silver clear and true in the simple tune, Amy looked over her shoulder at Mary Jackson. She didn't know why she should choose that moment, but suddenly she wanted to tell Howard's mother her own great piece of news. Perhaps she wanted to exercise the restless spirit of Jane, evoked by the talk about her. For what she had to tell would banish Jane still farther from her, and build higher the wall of separation between them. "Nancy's going to have a little brother to sing duets with along about next March," she said. "There's some real interest and excitement for you."

JURIST ABROAD

DR. TA IN-TSEN ON BRITISH JUDICIARY

London, Aug. 14.

Dr. Ta In-tsen, Vice-President of the Judicial Yuan, who has been making an extensive study tour of European legal systems, has just completed a thorough enquiry of the English judicial system.

During his investigations in England, Dr. Ta has met the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Chief Justice and has visited the criminal and civil courts, during session, also the county courts, police courts and prisons of London.

The Chinese jurist is leaving for Belgium on August 16, and after staying there for some time, will leave for Holland, Germany, Austria and Italy, and is coming to China via the United States.

In an interview with Reuter, Dr. Ta said that he was most favourably impressed with the functioning of British justice, particularly because, in the English system, there was so much respect for tradition and the peoples' customs; also the British were prepared to adapt their laws to their wishes, which he regarded as essential for the true carrying out of justice.

Dr. Ta added that the British system of circuit judges was excellent, and thought that it was a good idea to take up the system in China, owing to the large stretches of territory which must be covered.

Therefore, Dr. Ta said, he intended to recommend the circuit system to the Chinese Government.

With regard to the British jury system, Dr. Ta said he admired it; but he doubted whether it would be practicable in China.

Dr. Ta was greatly impressed with the English police court system, and he said he much enjoyed the privilege of sitting on the Bench on several occasions.

A rarity in London's social life was the Chinese civil wedding at which Miss Yio-chung Li, daughter of the chairman of the Bank of China, became the bride of Dr. Sze Ming Sze, son of the Chinese Minister to the U.S. The bride is shown arriving at the Chinese legation for the ceremony.

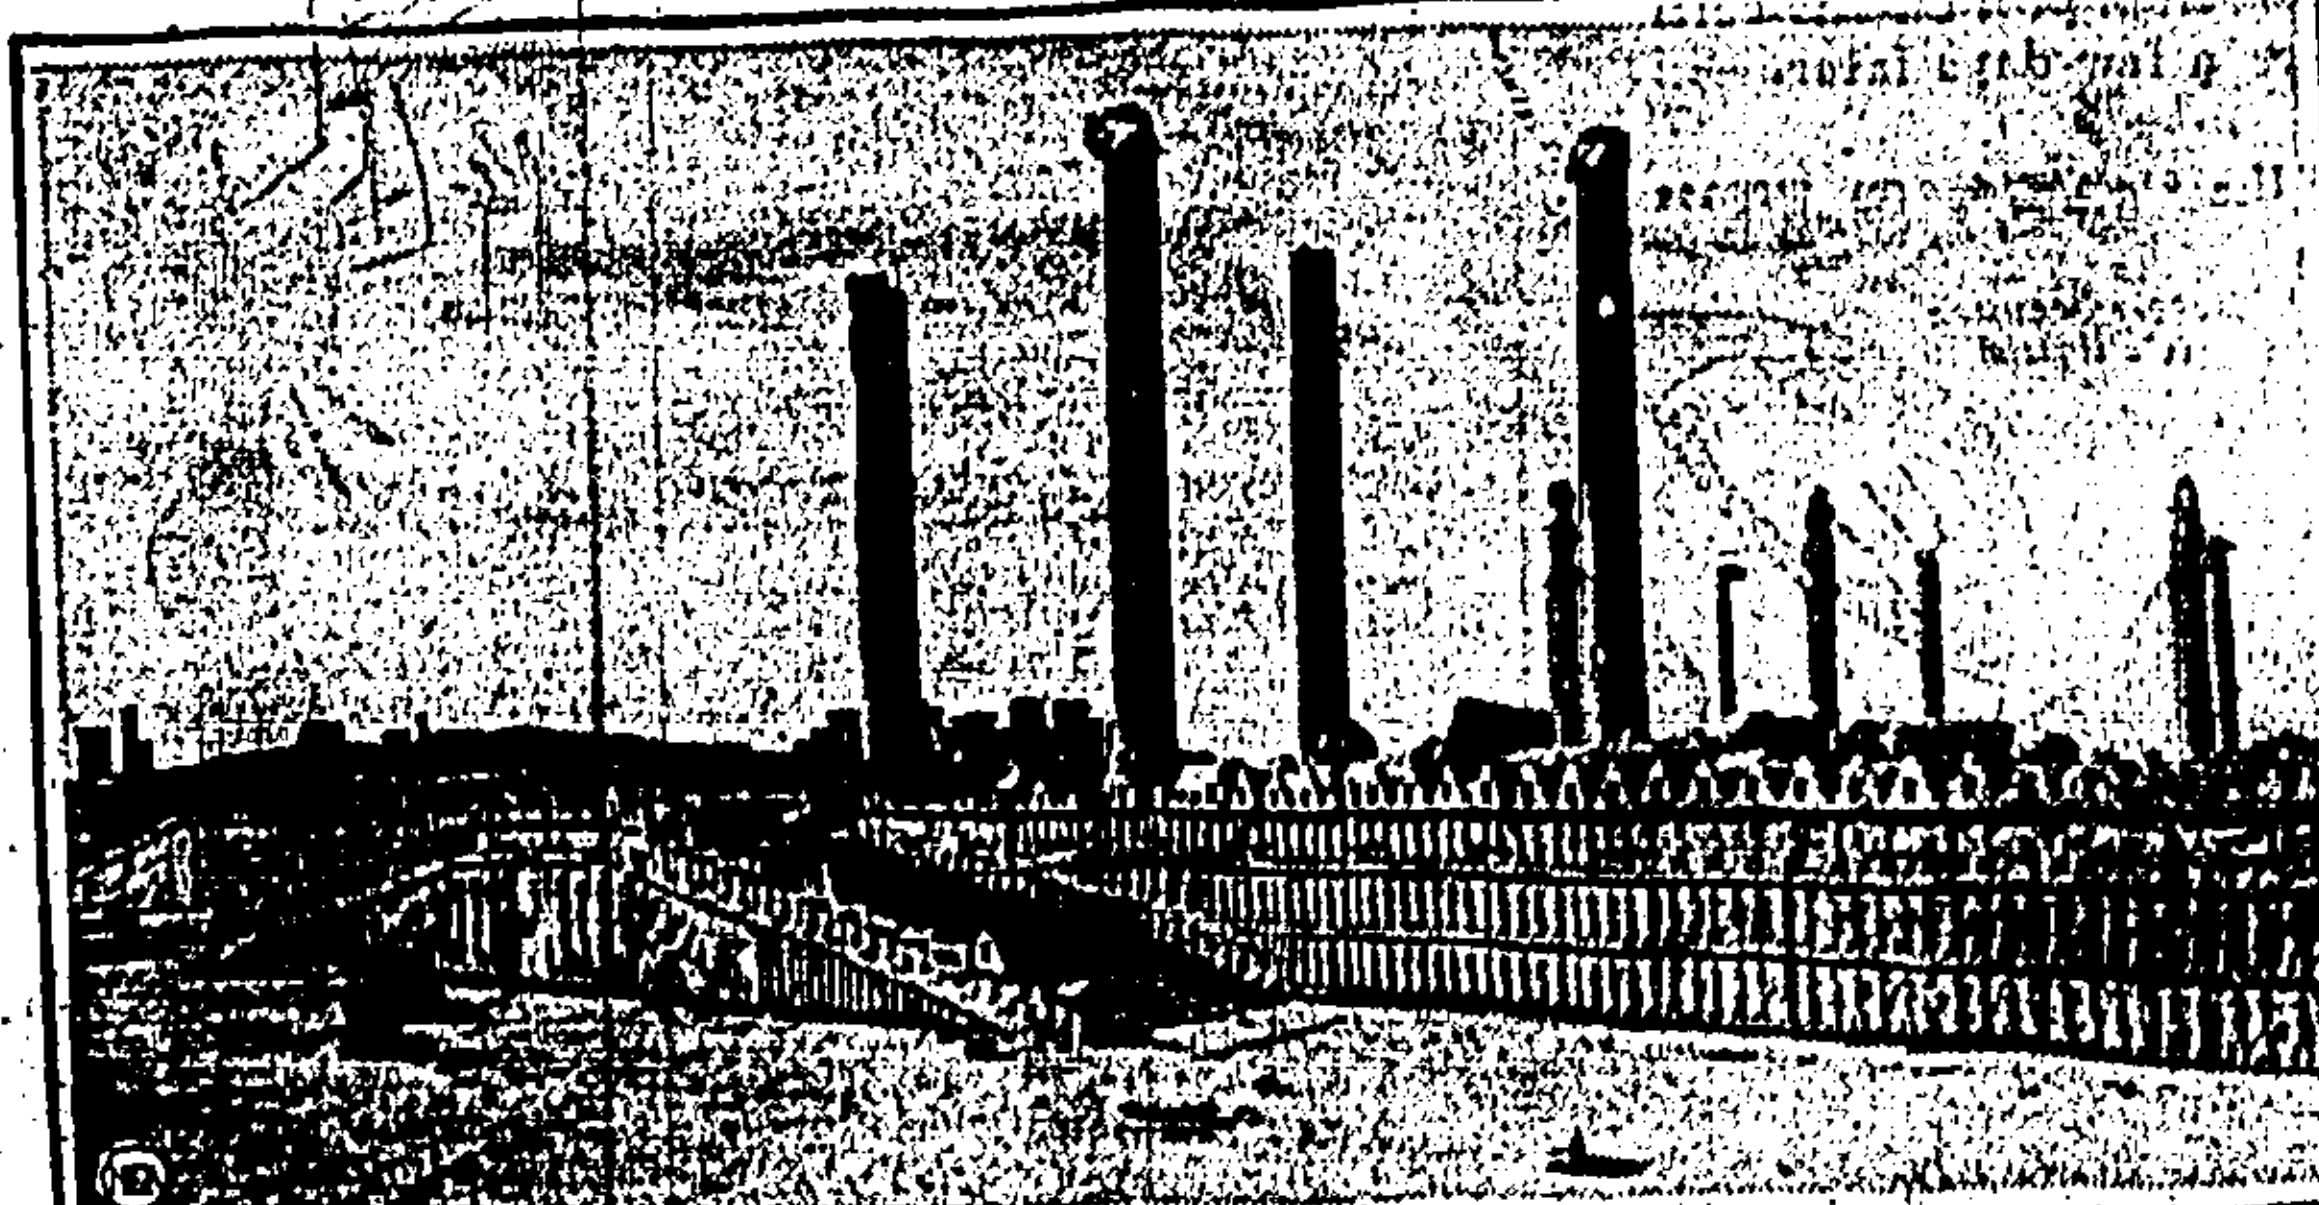

A valuable archaeological find, a statue of the lord of fertility worshipped in Sumner 5,000 years ago, discovered at Tell Astar by the Chicago University's Iraq expedition.

First president of the United States to visit the Virgin Islands, Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt, was greeted by cheering throngs as he landed at St. Croix. The president's car is shown as it halted after passing under an arch on which was inscribed "God bless you." There the president and his party paused to listen to the songs and cheers of the natives.

As teamsters joined the strike of union workmen in San Francisco, trucks were overturned, cutting off the city's food supplies. Sporadic violence, like the above scene showing a truck overturned in the street, spread through the city as the general strike became more menacing.

The magnificent terrace where Persian conquerors walked until Alexander the Great crushed them more than 2,000 years ago is shown at the left, part of the great structure unearthed at Persepolis, the Versailles of ancient Persia. Two years of excavation by the Chicago University Oriental expedition revealed the terrace, buried for centuries after Alexander, in a drunken rage burned the imperial palace in 330 B.C.

MINNEAPOLIS STRIKE.

EMPLOYERS' COMPROMISE OFFER REJECTED

Minneapolis, Aug. 14. A committee of one hundred, representing the striking truck drivers, to-day rejected the compromise peace proposals drafted by the employers. It is understood the rejection was based on the issue of re-hiring strikers. The employers offered to re-hire only those strikers who had not participated in violence, but the condition was unacceptable to the strikers' committee.—United Press.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET IRREGULAR YESTERDAY

The following reports on the New York stock market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz: The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market: Stocks were sluggish and irregularly lower in response to the Treasury announcement removing the inflation factor from the nationalization of silver. Silver issues declined very heavily. Traders were lacking in resources to continue support. Rail, chemical, motor and farm equipment issues followed the decline of silver shares. Steel issues were relatively steady. The decline in commodities reflected the decline in the price of the nationalization of silver and the end of the heat in the mid-West. Curb stocks were in a liquidation of face of scattered shares. United utility and mining shares. United States Government issues led the way in an irregular advance in bonds, which followed railroads.

S. C. & F. New York office cable: The market was extremely dull and slightly lower. Tractor issues were strong on rumours that a unified plan is near. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation announced that its operations are off 3 1/2 points at that time. The Steel Institute reports that operations are off 3 1/2 points at that time. The corresponding year Tyre Co.'s half-year earnings totalled $2,017,000 against a loss of $738,000 during the corresponding period of last year. The Oil & Gas Journal reports that during the week ending August 11th the daily average output of crude oil was 2,587,000 barrels against 2,511,000 barrels the previous week. Crude auto output for the week ending August 4th was 67,000 against 68,000 the previous week. The Detroit Edison's report for the year ended July 31st showed a net profit of $7,202,000 against $5,863,000 the previous year. The Pacific Gas last sales Active buying was lacking. Prices were easier on less inflation talk, private reports indicating an increase of 1,000,000 bales in the Indian crop and the threat of a general strike in the textile mills. Buyers and sellers were apart on the price of "spot" cotton. The textile market was quieter. We anticipate further moderate declines. Rubber: Profit-taking appears on advances. The underdone was steady. The Trade is still holding off. Sugar: The market was irregular, awaiting action by Washington regarding the Cuban Trade Treaty. Dow-Jones Averages: Aug. 13 Aug. 14

LAND ANNUITIES

NEAR RIOTS IN CORK; FARMER SHOT

Cork, Aug. 14.
Trouble over unpaid land annuities caused near riots in County Cork to-day.

One farmer was killed, seven wounded and 25 injured when the police charged and fired on several thousand farmers who adopted a threatening attitude, as a protest against the sale of cattle belonging to a farmer who had not paid his land annuities.

Mrs. O'Neill, sister of the well-known Dail Deputy, dashed across the line of fire in the safe yard and brought a priest who administered the Last Sacrament to Jeremiah Lynch, who had been fatally shot by the police.—Reuter.

LETTERS STOLEN

POSTAL PILLAR BOXES RIFLED

That postal pillar boxes in the central and western districts are being opened and rifled by some person or persons, backed by receivers, was disclosed in the Central Magistracy yesterday.

This systematic thievery might not have come to light for a long time, but for the smart action of a Chinese constable in the early part of this month.

While on patrol in Lower Lascar Road, the constable noticed a Chinese behaving suspiciously. When the policeman approached, the Chinese ran away, dumping a parcel as he fled.

An arrest was effected and it was found that the parcel contained a dozen letters stolen from pillar boxes. Investigators were puzzled as to how the letters came into the man's possession. He had no duplicate key and the suggestion that the letters were "fished" out of the boxes with a piece of string and glue was rejected because there were no marks on the envelopes.

Detective Inspector J. Murphy, in charging Kwok Kwan with receiving stolen letters, said the

LEAGUE'S ALLY

SOVIET MEMBERSHIP IN LEAGUE ASSURED

Geneva, Aug. 14.
It is understood that diplomatic conversations between the European capitals has cleared away all major political obstacles to the Soviet's entry to the League of Nations.

It is apparently certain that the September Assembly will report that details, such as the amount of the Russian's annual contribution, have been arranged.

Poland, realising that the Soviet must be granted a permanent seat on the League Council, is likely to take advantage of the opportunity to obtain a permanent seat for herself.

However, it is expected that the big Powers will oppose Poland's application.—United Press.

Postmaster General took a serious view of the case. He pointed out that a knowledge of the contents of business letters paved the way to numerous forms of fraud. Sentence of six months' imprisonment with hard labour was imposed on the defendant, who admitting receiving the letters.

JAPANESE NAVAL POLICY

Reports of the likelihood of Japan denouncing the Washington Naval Treaty are not surprising. They naturally follow the reception which has been accorded to the feelers sent out from Tokyo regarding the Japanese desire to achieve equality with the United States and Britain. It has been made evident that Japan's insistence on this demand would be met with opposition, and to this fact may be attributed the reported intention of the Japanese Government to denounce the Treaty. The presumption is that if Japan is unable to bring the United States and Britain round to her viewpoint, she will, by disengaging herself from the obligations laid down in the Washington agreement, preserve for herself a free hand regarding future naval expansion. In short, denunciation of the Treaty would be another step along the path which she has marked out for herself. At the moment, there is no official confirmation of the reported intention, but it is pointed out by the Japanese Embassy in Washington that a strong sentiment exists in Japan for action along these lines. This may be taken to indicate that the Tokyo Government is anxious to see what the reactions of the other interested Powers would be to such a move. It is the old story of sounding world opinion in advance, which is characteristic of Japanese diplomacy. The trouble so far, in regard to the forthcoming Naval Conference, has been that Japan, whilst repeatedly throwing out hints as to her likely attitude, has not seen fit to make a definite official declaration. The consequence has been to increase the speculation regarding the line likely to be taken, although enough has been hinted to show that a bold bid will be made to secure a revision of the existing restrictions. It will not, however, be an easy matter for Japan to convince the world that there is any real call for variation of the ratios laid down at the Washington Conference. There is not at present, nor in prospect, any threat to Japanese security. Moreover, Japan has an infinitely smaller sea zone to protect than either the United States or Britain. In the circumstances, the Tokyo Government will have great difficulty in establishing a case for revision of existing agreements in her favour. But the situation would undoubtedly take a serious turn were Japan to cut herself adrift from co-operative effort with the other Powers and strike out on a course of her own.

NOTES OF THE DAY THE TEST ROW

It needs only one more thing to give the much-maligned M.C.C. Committee a week of thoroughly sleepless nights. That would be an announcement by Larwood, objecting to being thrust into the background by the Voce controversy, that he is willing to play in the Final Test. Not that it would make any important difference—other than providing another weapon for the critics of England's policy in the leg-theory business. Here, of course, it is impossible to get at the rights and wrongs of the dispute. When one noted journalist declares that the Australians are resentful of Voce's tactics and another, of equally high repute, swears that they see no resemblance between Voce's leg-theory and the objectionable body-line form of attack, the mere reader, to go for the correct answer? It may not even be true, as appearances seem to suggest, that the M.C.C. are fumbling using their most effective attack for fear of causing offence. It is quite possible that they have studied both the methods of Voce and Larwood and have decided that they prefer to play the Australians at ordinary cricket, not a new-fangled form of the ancient game, whether the decision means victory or defeat. Tom Clarke talks not when he condemns any suggestion of playing Voce on a single performance. Voce's capabilities were well-known before Saturday. But he may still be right in commending the selectors for declining to be stampeded.

HOW TOURISTS PAY

The value of what are called "invisible exports" in a nation's economy is clearly illustrated by recent figures showing just what the tourist trade is worth to France. During 1933, for instance, American tourists spent about 1,500,000,000 francs in France. In that year, French exports to the United States were a little more than half that value—868,000,000 francs, to be exact. In other words, as far as the United States is concerned, the tourist business is worth twice as much to France as is foreign trade. There is one other interesting little thing about it. French authorities have tabulated the way in which the tourist's money is spent in France; and they have found that just 7 per cent. of it goes for what might be called wine, women and song. That, considering the popular tradition about the tourist's way of amusing himself in Paris, seems surprisingly low.

WAR'S AFTERMATH

A forest fire recently swept through a part of Apremont Forest, near Chalons-sur-Marne, France. Immediately the air was filled with the crash of exploding shells, which jarred the countryside and put the fire-fighters in grave danger. After fighting took place in this forest during the war. Many shells were shot into it. Some of them were "ducks"—had defective fuses or something—and failed to explode. So, during all the years since, they lay there, waiting for the fire to come and touch them off. There is something ghastly about the thought of those messengers of death biding their time in the depth of a peaceful forest. But they simply parallel the effects of war in human relations. War leaves many unexploded shells—hatreds, jealousies, suspicions, injustices, desires for revenge—and they lie inert, sometimes, for many years... waiting for the moment of heat that will blow them up and let them destroy human lives.

MAKING MATTERS WORSE

It is an ironic circumstance that the drought should cut American wheat production to the lowest point in a generation, just at the time when the government has been spending huge sums in an effort to reduce farm production. The American government's plan has been to increase the farmer's income by persuading him to reduce his acreage. Right into the middle of this programme has come a great natural catastrophe which has knocked the bottom right out of everything. Estimates at Washington vary but they all agree that wheat farmers will suffer a loss of not less than a thousand million dollars because of the drought. The only income many will get this year will be for acreage limitations which the drought makes insignificant. The whole wheat problem, like the AAA programme, was enough to begin with. The drought simply intensifies complexity of a puzzle that was already far too involved.

EUROPE SAFE AGAINST WAR?

By MILTON BRONNER

Is Europe insured against war for the next 10 years? Are the prospects for European peace better to-day than they have been for some time? It looks so to me, despite the flood of loose war talk. France and Germany are like two little boys with chips on their shoulders, but "one is afraid, and the other isn't." France is afraid that another war might bleed her white and spell her doom even if she won. Germany isn't ready, and her leaders wonder what would happen if war came, and they had to call up Jews, Socialists, Communists, trade unionists, and Catholics, and put rifles in their hands. Such troops might be more dangerous to Nazi officers than to the enemy. The main danger is some unexpected and unpredictable event such as was the murder of Archduke Ferdinand of Austria at Sarajevo 20 years ago. On form, neither France nor Germany wants war, and there is reason to believe that even apparently jingo happenings—the menacing speech of Germany's Rudolph Hess, and the hasty visit of France's Foreign Minister, Mr. Barthou to England—may be paving the way to peace rather than war.

HESS KNOWS BETTER.

Hess' speech amounts to whistling in the dark to keep up German courage. He assured France of Germany's peaceful intentions, but got the hurrah boys busy by asserting that, if France invaded Germany, France would have to fight a united nation. He knows better. He knows that only a part of the Germans would be united. And he knows that even that part is ill-prepared for a fight with every weapon of modern warfare.

It is true that both nations are nervous. France is nervous about a Germany of 65,000,000 people threatening to rearm, despite the Versailles Treaty. Germany is equally nervous lest France start a "preventive" war.

DOOMED EVEN IF VICTOR.

France wants peace so she can develop her colonial empire, but also because another war would just about bleed her white and be her finish—even if she won. Hence her sudden jump into friendship with Soviet Russia, her frantic efforts to woo Poland since the latter signed a peace pact with Germany, her careful nursing of the Little Entente (Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia), and her assiduous pursuit of mutual understandings with Great Britain.

Hitler, leader of Germany, also needs peace. Even if he desired a war, he is to-day not prepared to make it. Despite rumours to the contrary, there is no tangible evidence that Germany has any adequate supply of heavy artillery, tanks or other offensive weapons forbidden her by the Versailles Treaty.

GERMANY NOT READY.

tion does not encourage a war mood. She is even more isolated than she was on the eve of 1914. The only strong power even half friendly is Italy, and that country has traditionally been loath to be on the opposite side from England. But it is not only the military and the foreign situations which act as brakes upon Hitler. The internal situation makes peace almost imperative.

Hitler still has to consolidate his power. The recent "purge" during which some of his former trusted associates were killed, shows his danger right within his own Nazi ranks. This blood-bath has probably made Hitler new enemies thirsting for revenge.

PLEDGES ARE NOT KEPT.

He has left many of his promises unfulfilled. He has not closed the big department stores to make a holiday for the middle class of small shopkeepers.

He has not divided the big Junker estates among the land-hungry peasants. He has not yet conquered the bugbear of unemployment.

Outside his own party, his outlook is bleak. His persecutions of the Jews have made them his enemies to a man. The same applies to the Socialists, Communists, and trades unionists, whose organizations he destroyed. Arrests and threats to Catholics have largely alienated adherents of that powerful church.

REICHSWEHR IN DOUBT.

The Steel Helmets, composed of conservative veterans of the World War, are less than lukewarm. Final stand of the regular army, the Reichswehr, is problematical.

Finally and vastly significant is that in the Four-Power Pact among France, Germany, Italy and Great Britain, the time limitation was 10 years. The same period was stipulated in his peace pact with Poland.

That means that Hitler estimates he needs at least that amount of breathing space. If he got into a first-class war now, he would have to call up all his available manpower, including all those hundreds of thousands of men who bitterly hate his regime.

WOULD RAISE UP NEW PERIL.

He would have to put into his hands rifles, machine guns, and hand grenades, a course that might be more dangerous for Hitler and his henchmen than for the enemy.

But in 10 years the picture will be different. The manpower of to-day will be middle-aged by then and can be left at home or put to work in the factories and on the farms.

The boys of to-day, who are 8 and 9 years old, will then be of military age. They will have been moulded in the Nazi form. They will have learned the Nazi version of history.

They are the cannon fodder of the morrow. They will grow to manhood with no recollections of the horrors of the last war. They will be taught the glory of dying heroes' deaths for the Fatherland—and Hitler.

They will be ready, perhaps, in a decade or so, for a new war, but not ready to-day. And in that unreadiness lies a hope for peace that is often overlooked.

The Very Idea!

BRIGHTER BOWLS

By George

THE Colony bowling championship having almost reached its final stages we print to-day a letter from an enthusiastic reader who would like to see the thrill of the game reproduced in journalism. Thuswise.

WORMHUNTER BOWLS A WICKED WOOD

Blackjack Lacked Legs
In Hectic Fight

UNBIASED REPORT.

Willie Wormhunter rose to unsurpassed heights last night when he outshot Bertie Blackjack in the tearway final of the singles championship before a hundred crown-green fans at the Hijackers, Venue last night.

Winning the toss with a coin hastily borrowed from one of the reporters, Willie elected to kick off with the sun behind him and his first wood tore up the green to smash the jack into the nullah, amidst frenzied cheers.

Playing inspired bowls in the absence of his wife who was attending the funeral of her mother, Willie crisscrossed the jack time and again with dainty woods while Bertie continually failed with close cannons or losing hazards.

At the tenth head Bertie sliced his tee shot and was bunkered behind a divot kicked up by Willie. The silence could be heard for miles around. Willie was then two up with ten to go.

The Crowd Roars.

At half time Blackjack lodged an unpopular appeal for falling light but Willie countered on the plea that the lemons were sour.

"The match goes on!" roared referee Hampton amidst the hurricane applause of the frantic fans.

Faile and drawn the contestants toed the line for the final stanzas, a slight argument over Willie using Bertie's mat being decided by the referee who found that the mat belonged to him.

Blackjack laid four woods round the jack and one on top in the seventeenth head and it looked all up for Wormwood. Scrubs but Willie, whirling a wasp-like wrist, dribbled from the wings to crash the shot in the bottom right hand corner.

Overcome by excitement Blackjack fell flat on the fairway but his supporters fanned him with the tape measure to such tune that he came out of his corner at the eighteenth session to protest against leg theory allegedly adopted by Willie.

Willie dexterously wooed the jack in the twentieth and final head when Blackjack double faulted his first shots, sent up a wide and a no ball and then found himself snookered by a molehill which the club's mascot had been working on for the last two days. "Too bad," said the hilarious Willie to our representative as he went up for an interview and a drink. "I would have won easier if I had brought my mallet."

EVA AND THE MAN.

Self-starting cars have been a great innovation but we think the old type of automobile which could be better described as self-stopping, took a great deal of beating from the point of view of the pleasure-owner-driver.

Nowadays we just let the bus peter out and lean luxuriously back on the new upholstery to get an arm round the girl with the remark: "I expect the engine's a bit hot dear. It'll be all right in a minute." Whereupon the girl lifts up the bonnet and after a cursory glance comes back to report "Mookey plookey!"

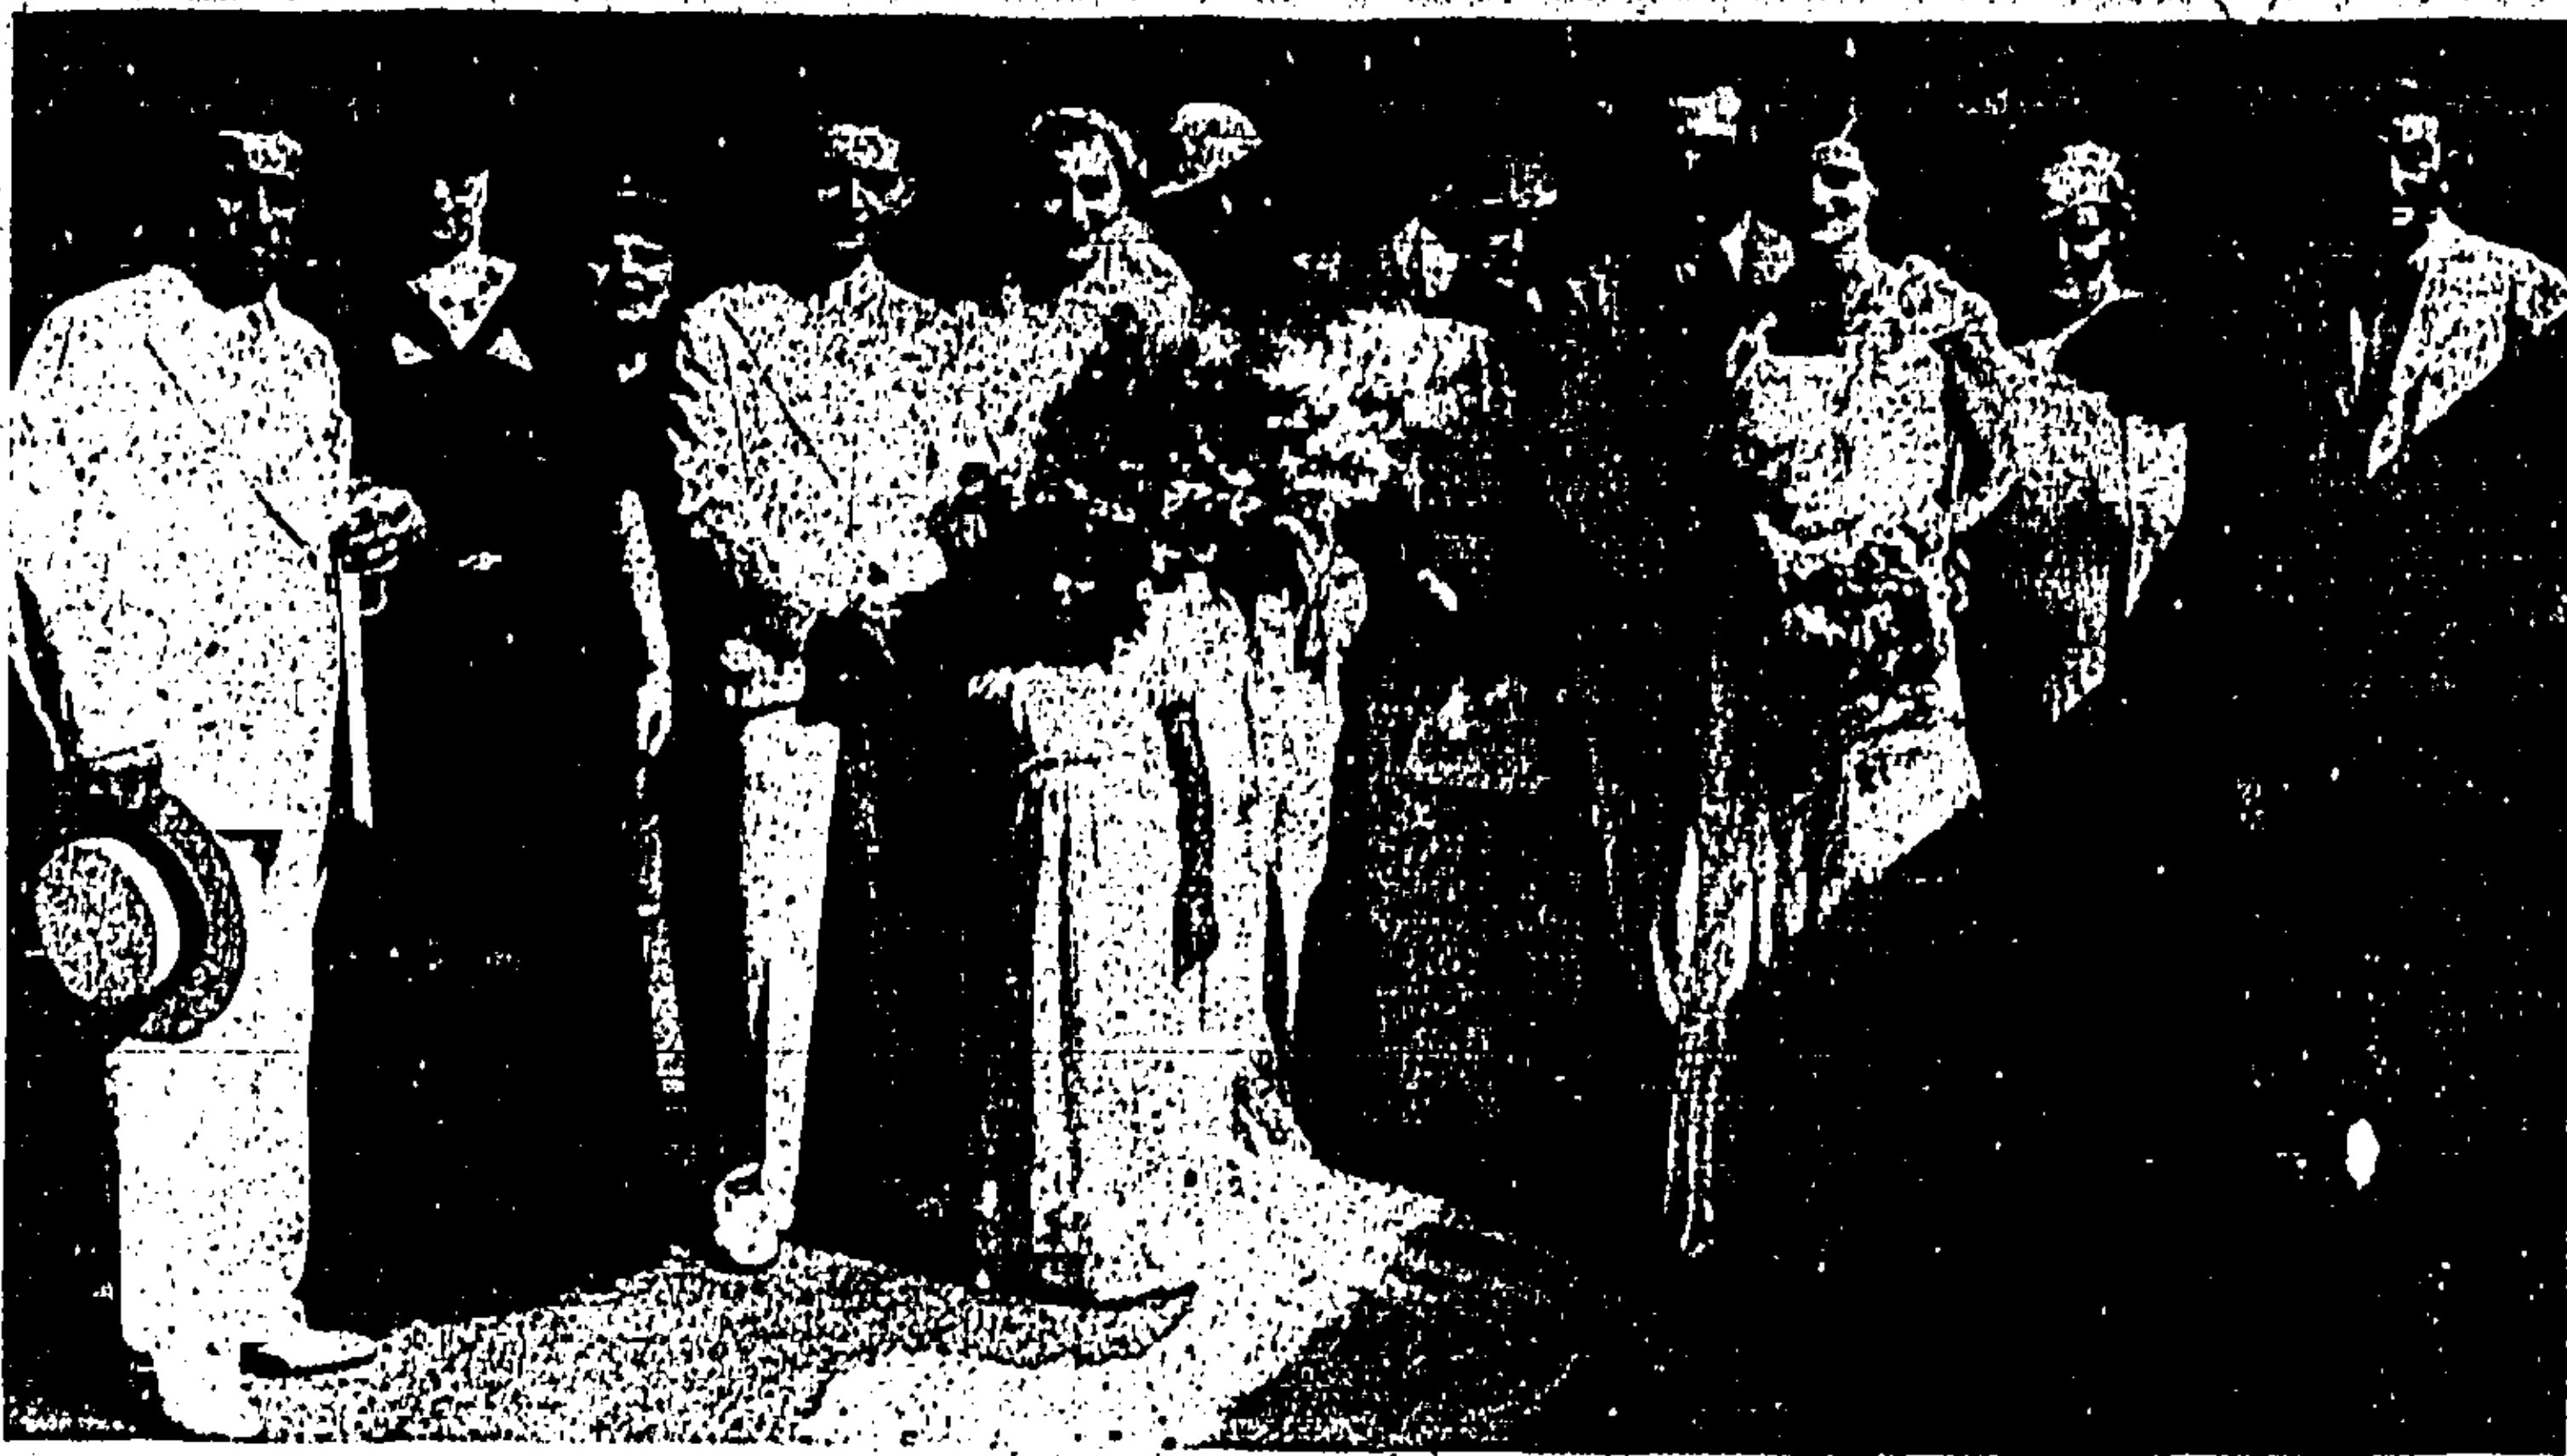

This is one of the reasons we have never had a car the other reason being that we could never get a girl to go out with us if we had one. Having a "never-never" girl in a car bought on the never-never system is a combination we couldn't face.

Of course the new traffic installation really decided us against a car after we had failed to borrow the money or learned to drive. We visualised a motorist waiting on the rubber mat patiently counting thirty seconds for the tenth time while on the opposite mat stood a couple of pedestrians keeping their feet dry during their conversation. On the other road a ricksha boy stood explaining the system in broken Tokio to an English-speaking Swiss lady while opposite him two tired coolies had laid a wardrobe, a table, and the best part of a house on the mat in order to take a rest.

We wondered just what would happen if they all saw red at the same time.

"Oh, dear, I never have a minute I can call my own."

M. P.'S TO VISIT UGANDA

DELEGATES LEAVING TO-DAY

London, Aug. 14. Members of the United Kingdom branch of the Empire Parliamentary Association, forming the Parliamentary delegation to Uganda and Tanganyika, headed by Sir John Wardlaw Milne, will leave Croydon by air to-morrow en route for Uganda. They are due at Cairo on the 17th, Khartoum on the 18th and arrive at Entebbe on the 20th inst.

While in Uganda the delegates will be the guests of the Uganda Government, and a programme enabling them to study the system of native administration, to investigate problems of production and marketing, both European and native, and other questions, has been prepared.

After leaving Uganda, the delegates will visit Tanganyika at the invitation of the Governor of that territory. Sir John Wardlaw Milne and Colonel Sandeman Allen will later visit Zanzibar for a further week, but the main party are expected to return to England on September 29.—British Wireless.

CORRESPONDENCE

Hawkers' Obstructions

To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.

Sir,—In reply to "Pedestrian's" letter on hawkers' obstruction in your paper of last night, I don't think "Pedestrian" knows of the very serious obstruction he can see in many other parts of the Colony. When I finished shopping at the China Emporium recently, I left by the back door off Stanley Street, intending to buy a newspaper, but going to the wrong side, (the west side) between Cochrane Street and Graham Street, I noticed many hawkers stalls. The street is about 20 feet wide, and the hawkers lay out their cooking utensils on both sides of the street, while they even out in the middle of the street, thus making it impossible for pedestrians to pass through. The result was that I was forced to return to the east side of the street and get my newspaper at China Building. The spot referred to is one of the worst places for obstruction I have ever seen.

LONDON MEN GOING FEMININE!

IN THEIR WEARING APPAREL

London, Aug. 13. Men, here, are going all feminine in their clothes, a recent trade exhibition showed.

Such articles as ankle socks, knitted tan-o-shanters, yellow, green and blue silk sports shirts would never have been accepted for summer sports wear a few years ago.

The same tendency can be seen right through the modern man's wardrobe. He no longer wears heavy wollen undergarments, but silk articles that closely suggest "undies". His dressing-gowns are always silk with striking patterns. His suspenders are narrow and in delicate shades.

One of the most interesting features of the show was a soft checked black and white silk shirt with collar attached which the manufacturers are certain will be the accepted 1940 evening wear for men with a dinner jacket.

Another item was a new stretchable fabric shirt which contains no rubber but will stretch and give to movement like elastic. It is claimed for it that a man would be able to wear a shirt two sizes too small for him with comfort. The practical use would be extreme ease and comfort combined with neatness. The material is absolutely unshrinkable. Single-breasted suits will be more popular this Fall, but a three piece combination of double-breasted jacket to be worn with either plus fours or trousers will be shown.—United Press.

BIGGER ARMY

AUSTRIA REQUIRES LARGER FORCES

Vienna, Aug. 14. It is learned on good authority that international negotiations to obtain a considerable increase in Austria's army, which is at present forbidden under the peace treaties, will probably go forward at Geneva at the September meeting of the League of Nations assembly.

Prince von Starhemberg, who last week visited Italy, probably told Signor Mussolini that Austria's armed forces were insufficient to adequately protect the country in the event of a new carefully organised Nazi push.

The United Press exclusively learns from an authentic source that, owing to the fear that another Nazi push is imminent, Austria has sent notes to Britain, France and Italy requesting a renewal of the agreement permitting Austria to maintain a special auxiliary armed force of 8,000 troops, beyond the existing 22,000 of the regular army.

The Powers are at present considering Austria's Note, and are expected to reply favourably.—United Press.

Von Papen Leaves. Berlin, Aug. 14. It is officially learned that Capt. von Papen, the new German Minister to Austria, left to-day for Austria by aeroplane.—United Press.

SHANGHAI-BORN PRIMA DONNA

CELEBRATES 67TH BIRTHDAY

JUST DOESN'T GROW OLD

Paris, Aug. 13.

To-day is the 67th birthday anniversary of Madame Emma Eames, Shanghai-born American prima donna now living in Paris.

"I don't know where it all goes to," she told the United Press in an exclusive interview, and referring at the moment to Time, "but there is no use trying to hold on to something that is stronger than any man or woman living."

In this, Madame Eames agrees with the celebrated French writer, Andre Maurois, who says there are only two ways to grow old, either don't, or do so gracefully.

Despite Madame Eames' 67 years, she is in the first category of those who just do not grow old—"because she has never had time to show age." There is the same snap and sparkle in the eye and the smile of this world-famed singer who made her Paris Grand Opera debut on the 13th of March 1889, as there was in those same two places on her 16th birthday.

"It is primarily, of course, a matter of how you feel inside," continued Mme. Eames on the debatable subject of age, "and then to keep yourself as intelligently busy as possible."

Madame Eames was born in China, of American parents, because her father happened to be a lawyer in the International Courts at the time. She has travelled pretty well over the world, having made her American debut in Opera soon after her Paris premiere, and in Covent Garden in 1891.

Although she has been retired for a number of years during which time she has lived chiefly in Paris, her intimate friends believe that she may be prevailed upon to stage a comeback in opera, but a Mona Lisa countenance when confronted with the probability reveals only an interrogative silence.

"POPPYCOCK"

In response to a query amongst musicians and teachers in Paris recently Mme. Eames was of the decided opinion that certain singers could also be teachers, but that it was more often the exception than the rule. A good singer ought to be a good teacher, but after he or she has stopped singing as a profession, because they know exactly what is going on inside of the pupil. This new-fangled business of a scientist or doctor knowing more about placing a voice than a teacher is poppycock.

A person may have all the machinery and the proper box for it, for singing perfectly and yet make a fizzle out of it, and by the same token the reverse is also true. The main thing is that to-day, people are not willing to work hard enough to really achieve success. Fly-by-nighters have discouraged them and they haven't had the intelligence to realize that

MODERN CRIME PREVENTION

LEICESTER PLANE EXPERIMENTS

Leicester, Aug. 13.

British crime experts are now predicting the time in the near future when the "cop" in the air will supersede the policeman on the motor-cycle as the chief weapon of the law in hunting down automobile bandits in this country.

Aeroplanes and radio have just been called into play by the police in a trial man-hunt staged near here. A fake bank hold-up was notified in a nearby town. Airplanes equipped with radio sets were immediately despatched from Desford airdrome. As a result, the imaginary thugs were successfully run to earth within 25 minutes of the time when they were supposed to have robbed the bank of $150,000.

The police expressed great satisfaction over the result of this experiment and believe that when practical use is made of it a hot time will be in store for Great Britain's Dillingers and present-day Diamond Dicks.

WIRELESS THE SECRET.

The police planes were fitted with short-wave transmitting and receiving sets of a type used for military purposes. The wavelength used for both telegraphy and telephony was approximately 145 meters.

The police automobiles which worked in conjunction with the planes were also equipped with a shortwave transmitter and receiver fitted under the dashboard. It could be operated equally well by the driver or a passenger. A loudspeaker was fixed to the back of the driving-seat and a short metal rod acted as aerial.

This method of tracking-down bandits has never been tried before in Great Britain. Planes and police automobiles equipped with radio sets have, however, been used on a number of occasions for directing traffic at big race meetings such as Epsom and Ascot.

The pilots in the police planes claim that they can pick out any automobile at a height of 500 feet and follow it easily.—United Press.

The fly-by-nighters seldom contribute lastingly to any field of endeavour.

"The men and women who really are somewhere to-day will tell you that they had to work to get there, and if you will watch them you will find them continuing to work until the day they die. What these men and women have done will go on long after their death, while the quick-to-famers will be forgotten while the gull is settling compactly over their graves."

LEARN TO SAY "NO"

More than fifty years experience have taught Madame Eames that the biggest lesson people must learn who would devote their lives to a profession, is to learn to say "No!" "and to keep on saying it to all outside influences that serve as distractions from the hard-beaten path to a lasting success."

Because Madame Eames has practised what she preaches, she is to-day, on her 67th birthday, the picture of health, vitality and youthful enthusiasm. Her young friends envy her beautifully groomed white hair, and her more mature white-haired friends envy her "technique" complexion, and both envy and admire a gorgeous voice which has like good wine, only mellowed with Time and lost none of its power of intoxication.

CHINESE WHARF LABOUR

GLOWING TRIBUTE AT ROTARY CLUB

Rotarian C. F. Terry paid a glowing tribute to Chinese labour, engaged in stevedoring, in the course of his talk to the Rotary Club, at their fifth at the Hongkong Hotel Roof Garden yesterday.

"The speed at which cargo can be handled is, of course, largely dependent on the labour available, and we in Hongkong are fortunate in our supply of first class labour for this purpose," he said. "The Chinese stevedore and cargo coolie under trained supervision, is among the best in the world at his job, and it is worthy to note that in the little island of Nauru, in the middle of the Pacific, the winchmen and labourers employed in loading the Island's large (and only) exports of phosphate rock are Chinese."

Rotarian M. K. Lo presided, and guests welcomed were Messrs. R. D. Walker, A. F. Crawford, and Royce Greatwood.

SUSSEX DEPOSED FROM THE CRICKET LEADERSHIP

LANCASHIRE CLIMB TO THE TOP

FIRST CHANGE SINCE MAY 24

YORKSHIRE ALSO IMPROVE BY INNINGS VICTORY

TOWNSEND IN BRILLIANT FORM FOR DERBY AGAINST SOMERSET

For the first time since May 24, Sussex have been deposed as leaders of the county cricket championship table. Lancashire, who for the past few weeks have been threatening to dislodge the southerners, accomplished this to-day as a result of their one innings victory, and the failure of Sussex against Kent.

Sussex have been steadily declining for the past six weeks, while both Lancashire and Yorkshire have improved at their expense. The record of the three leading teams now read:

	P.	W.	L.	1st	Inn.	No.	Pos.	Pts.	Av.
Lancs	20	13	3	6	4	0	390	237	60.76
Sussex	26	12	1	5	7	1	390	230	58.97
York	25	11	5	4	3	2	375	200	53.33

Lancashire gained a brilliant success against Middlesex. Middlesex were led on the first innings, but found it expedient to declare in the second. But they reckoned without the splendid batting of the Lancastrians, who had to make runs against the clock, and succeeded.

Middlesex, batting first, compiled 238, Booth being the most destructive bowler with 5 for 67. Lancashire replied with 299. The London team, with 227 runs on the board for the loss of nine wickets, thought they were safe, and applied the closure, but Lancashire went wholeheartedly for the bowling and hit off the required 168 runs for the loss of four wickets.

Sims did some marvellous bowling in Lancashire's first innings, capturing nine wickets for 92 runs.

TEST MEN IN FORM.

Yorkshire were even more severe against Surrey, whom they beat by an innings and 167 runs. The honours of this match went to Sutcliffe and Verity, two of next Saturday's Test players.

Sutcliffe turned his Saturday's knock of 150 not out into 203 before losing his wicket, and Yorkshire were able to declare at 431 for 9.

Verity then played havoc with the Surrey batsmen, taking 6 for 114.

With a whole day wasted owing to rain, there was but slight chance of a definite decision being reached in the Sussex v Kent match at Hastings, and as events turned out, Sussex had the worst of a draw. Batting first Kent put together 236 for 4 wickets and declared. Sussex fell 23 runs short of this score, and Kent played out the remainder of time scoring 118 for 8.

For personal achievement, the outstanding match of the programme was that between Derby and Somerset, which saw the

"MY BEST GAME TO DATE"

PERRY ON HIS WIMBLEDON

CRAWFORD MAKES AN ADMISSION

It is Crawford's opinion that there is no base-line player in the game to-day who can worry Perry. Crawford admitted that his game suited Perry.

"Your leading player has more length than Shields; he is absolutely tireless and like streak lightning on the court. I could not take the net sufficiently often to worry him, and he is not to be beaten from the base-line."

In their six encounters during the past year Crawford confessed that he had never experienced such speed from Perry as that shown by the Englishman in the final. From 1-3 in the first set when Perry was winning 12 games there was no holding him," said Crawford.

TOO FAST.

When the semi-final results had been announced, Perry-Crawford match opinion was sought of a certain Australian who had witnessed the former encounters of Perry and Crawford, for his views on the coming final. The reply given was that Perry would be too fast for their representative, that the Englishman was fighting fit and that if he gained an early lead there would be no holding him. How true this prophecy turned out to be is now common knowledge.

BEST GAME YET.

Perry agreed that in his match against Crawford he played the best game he has ever yet reproduced. He attributes his victory in the Championship partly to the fact that he left the grounds each day as soon as his matches were over. He felt confident that he could give a good account of himself this year if he could banish all thoughts of his recent ankle injury, but his friends at Wimbledon were always so solicitous about the accident that he was glad to escape their attentions and flee from the club to the comparative quiet of a friend's film studio after each day's play.

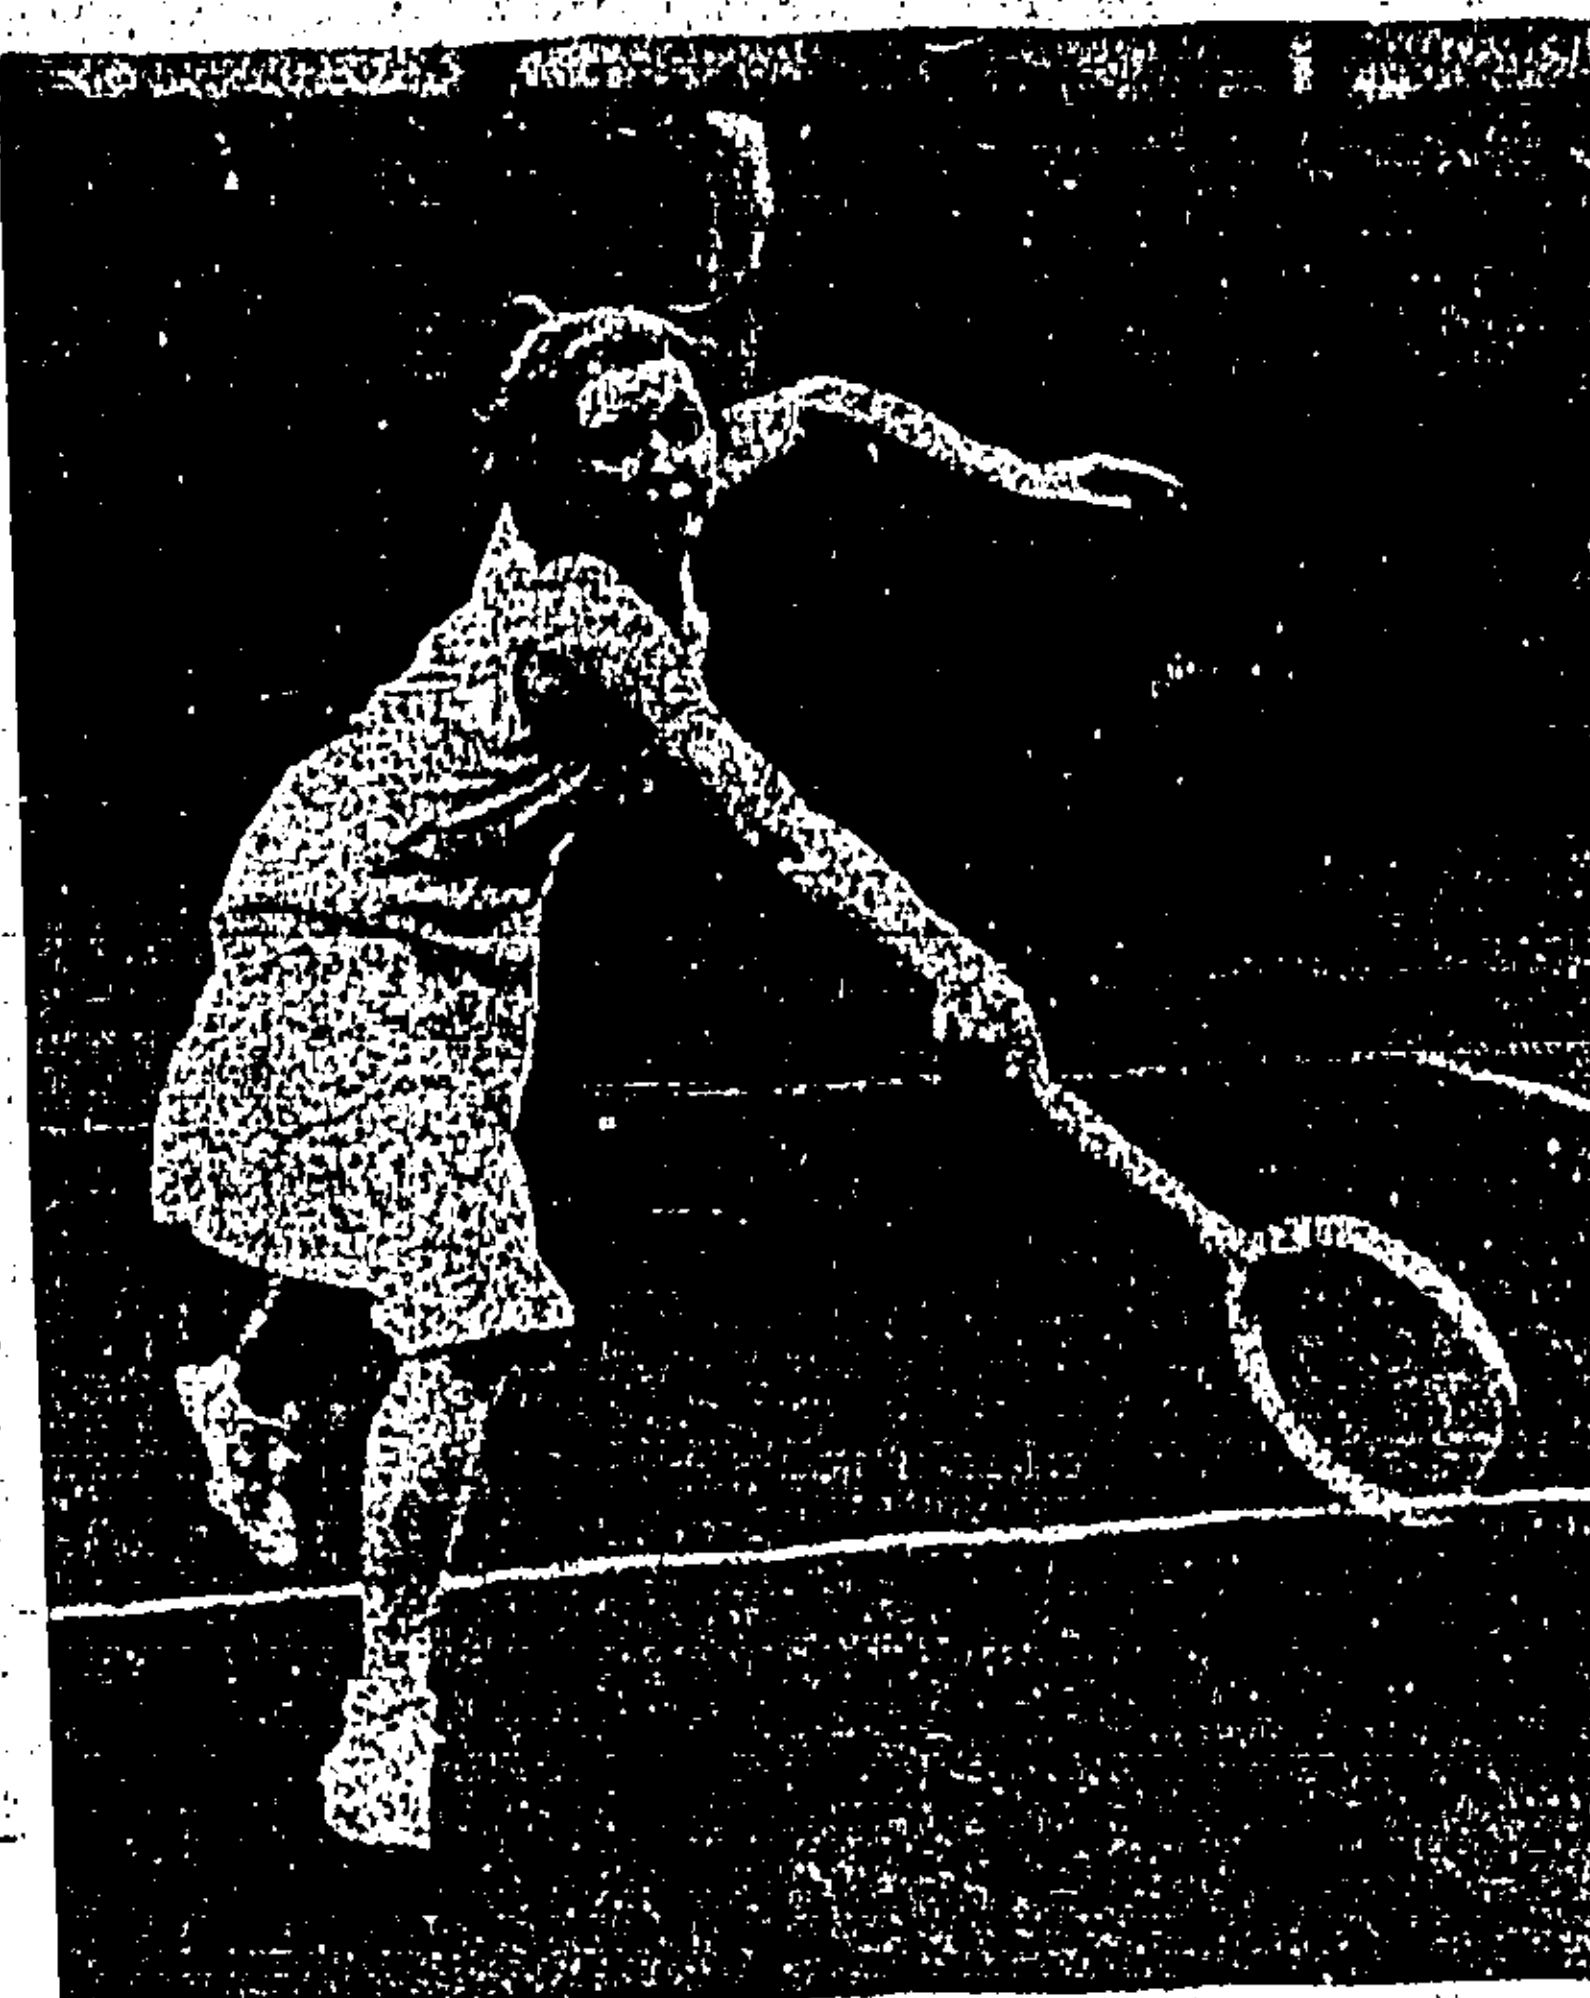

Perry readily admitted that he had anxious matches against Menzel, Lott and Wood, especially Lott whose kicking service he confessed presented great difficulties. Perry was modestly reserved about his final against Crawford, but confessed that he knew a good deal about the Australian's play and was able to anticipate the return of Crawford to any given shot. He also stated that the Australian's type of game suited him whereas his own had the reverse effect on his rival.

St. Joseph's Asked To Visit Canton

The local football season is due to start shortly, and already teams are thinking of getting into their stride quickly, for the opening league matches. Practice will be in full progress during the next couple of weeks, and teams are now fixing up friendly matches, prior to the commencement of the official contests.

St. Joseph's Club will have a kick around as soon as weather permits. During the September Bank Holiday they will pay a visit to Canton, where a series of matches will be played. The team will leave on Saturday, September 1, and return on Monday, September 3.

Baseballer Tears Up His Uniform

CARDINALS' PITCHERS IN TROUBLE

New York, Aug. 14. There is trouble in the St. Louis Cardinals' camp, and all American baseball fans are talking of how "Dizzy" Dean, famous Cardinals pitcher, tore up his uniform in a rage.

A Reuter message states that in the match against Philadelphia Phillies to-day, the veterans "Dizzy" Dean and Jess Haines pitched for the Cardinals in consequence of the suspension, over an indefinite period, of "Dizzy" Dean and Paul Dean by manager Frank Keefe.

The reason for this suspension was their refusal to accept "gracefully," fines imposed for failure to accompany the Cardinals to Detroit to take part in an exhibition game on Monday.

On learning of the suspension, "Dizzy" Dean tore up his uniform.

Anyhow, the veteran pitchers did good work for the Cardinals to-day, sending the Phillies back with but a single run hit from them.

The full results of the day's baseball, as cabled by Reuter, follow.

UPSET IN U.S. TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

LOSES TO AMERICAN SIXTH RANKING PLAYER

MISS STAMMERS AND MISS JAMES HAVE HARD MATCHES

Forest Hills, Aug. 14. Miss Betty Nuthall, the prominent English Wightman Cup player, to-day sadly misplaced the confidence of the American tennis championship seeding committee, when, in the second round of the U.S. Women's singles championship, she was beaten by Baroness Levi, No. 6 ranking player in the United States.

Miss Nuthall was defeated in straight sets, offering a disappointing display against one of the most improved players in America to-day. Baroness Levi has earned many distinguished successes in State tournaments this year, and her performance to-day only went to justify the pertinacity of the American ranking authorities, who had awarded her sixth place.

Miss Kathleen Stammers, chief English "hope" in the U.S. Women's singles tennis championship.

HARD STRUGGLES.

Some compensation was gained for English followers in the further victories of Miss Kathleen Stammers and Miss Freda James. The latter ran up against a doughty opponent in Mrs. John Van Ryn, and was taken to three sets before securing the verdict.

Miss Stammers also had a long journey in beating Mrs. Painter. She lost the first set easily, and only captured the second and third after 30 games.

Miss Helen Jacobs won again without the loss of a set, but Miss Jane Sharp, her compatriot, managed to win five games in the course of the match.

The results, as cabled by Reuter, were:

SECOND ROUND.

Baroness Levi (U.S.) beat Miss B. Nuthall (Britain)	6-4, 6-4
Miss K. Stammers (Britain) beat Mrs. Painter (U.S.)	1-6, 6-4, 11-9
Miss Freda James (Britain) beat Mrs. Van Ryn (U.S.)	6-2, 6-8, 6-1
Miss Helen Jacobs (U.S.) beat Miss Jane Sharp (U.S.)	6-4, 6-1

Arsenal will pay a dividend of 7½ per cent, the maximum allowed by the F.A. rules.

Other League clubs must envy the Arsenal's wonderful figures. The new stand and the fact that they won the League championship for the third time in four years were mainly responsible for their financial success.

Arsenal's profit is easily the biggest made by any League club. Others to top the five-figure mark were Manchester City, $16,322; Tottenham, $15,838; Stoke City, $13,422; and Portsmouth, $10,592.

To fill the vacancy caused by the appointment of G. F. Allison, a former director, as secretary-manager, Major General J. D. MacLachlan has been elected to join the board of directors. He has been a shareholder for many years.

INTERESTING STATISTICS CULLED AT WIMBLEDON

POINTS AND SERVICE SCORES IN THE LEADING MATCHES

COMPARISONS SHOW LITTLE BETWEEN THE PLAYERS

A record was kept of the number of errors and winning shots scored by Miss Jacobs and Frl. Aussem in their fifth round singles match at Wimbledon. The statistics make an interesting study.

Miss Jacobs, always a firm believer in defence as the basis of one's game, conceded 17 errors, only in 14 games, and of this number several could with justice be credited to Frl. Aussem as winners. It was sometimes difficult to decide whether a shot from Frl. Aussem should have been given to the German lady as a "winner" or debited to Miss Jacobs who got her racket to the ball but failed to make a good return. Details:

Miss Jacobs: First set, 6 errors; 10 winners. Second set, 11 errors; 10 winners.

Frl. Aussem: First set, 20 errors; 4 winners. Second set, 10 errors; 7 winners.

PERRY v. WOOD.

A record of service aces was kept during Perry's match against Wood in the semi-final. The American sent over 33 deliveries in his service games which Perry could not steer back into court, eight of these service aces being clean winners which were not touched on their way to the stop-netting. Perry scored outright in service 25 times, two only being clean winners. Many of these services Wood covered easily enough but hit them into the net or elsewhere. These figures indicate that Wood's fine service was largely counter-balanced by Perry's own effective delivery which, if not quite so severe, was good enough to score almost as heavily. The details were:

Service Aces.

	1st set	2nd	3rd	4th	5th
Perry	6	5	4	5	5
Wood	5	7	8	7	6
Double faults: Perry 7, Wood 6.

POINT SCORE.

The point score of the Perry-Wood match also provides interesting statistics. Perry won 149 points against Wood's 148. The closeness of these figures is probably accounted for by the large number of games won to love or to 15 when Wood was serving; he won 7 games to love, and 9 games to 15. At the end of the fourth set Wood was leading by 124 points to 120. Details:

First Set (Perry serves) 4-1 4-2 4-1 4-2 0-4 3-5 4-6 4-2, equals Perry 31 points to 24.

Second Set (Wood serves) 4-1 4-2 1-4 2-4 1-1 4-0 5-3 4-2, equals Wood 20 to 21.

Third Set (Perry serves) 4-1 2-4 2-4 3-5 5-3 2-4 4-2 4-0 5-3 4-2, equals Perry 40 to 34.

Fourth Set (Perry serves) 4-0 0-4 5-3 1-4 6-4 1-4 0-4 0-4 3-5 6-4 equals Wood 37 to 28.

Fifth set (Perry serves) 5-4 0-4 4-2 2-4 4-1 1-4 4-2 4-1 4-2, equals Perry 29 to 24.

Total: Perry 149 points, Wood 148.

CRAWFORD v. SHIELDS.

The match between Crawford and Shields was in many respects a battle between the cannon-ball service of the American and the ability of Crawford to withstand his rival's big delivery. The statistics of the match show that Shields scored 37 times with his service, whereas Crawford, rarely going out for an ace, managed to make Shields err on his return of service 29 times, 11 being in the fifth set. Shields won four of his service games to love and three with the loss of one point.

	1st set	2nd	3rd	4th	5th
Crawford	8	4	2	11	8
Shields	8	6	8	7	7
Double faults: Shields 7, Crawford 4.

POINTS SCORE.

The point score of this match reveals that Shields was leading by 123 points to 110 at the end of the fourth set, and in the fifth scored 30 points to 33. The total point score was Crawford 149, Shields 153.

First Set (Shields serves) 7-0 2-4 4-1 4-0 0-4 4-1 7-5, equals Shields 38 to 25.

Second Set (Shields serves) 4-2 1-4 4-0 2-4 1-4 4-0 8-0, equals Shields 34 to 27.

SWIMMING TRIALS

LAWRENCE WINS TWO RACES

Roza Pereira Beaten

W. Lawrence, the Colony's short distance swimming champion, swam two beautifully-judged races yesterday afternoon to win the 100 Yards and the 440 Yards at the Interport Swimming Trials held at the Y.M.C. bath. In both events, he just defeated L. Roza Pereira.

Lawrence's powerful last lap proved much too good for the rest in the 100 Yards, for which five entries were made. Besides Lawrence, there were L. Roza Pereira, E. B. Roza, A. A. Roza and H. L. Ozorio. E. B. Roza led for nearly three quarters of the distance, but cracked up in the last length to allow Lawrence and Pereira to pass him. Lawrence's time was 59.3/5 sec.

The 440 Yards was a fine race, the thrills being supplied by Lawrence and Roza Pereira. Other entries were A. A. Roza and J. Roza. A. A. Roza led for the first six lengths, with Roza Pereira a foot behind and Lawrence two yards further back. J. Souza was never in the race.

A. A. Roza and Roza Pereira led in turn up to the 15th length (the race was over 10½ lengths) but Lawrence was content to lie back, biding his time. Lawrence moved up in the 18th and soon caught up A. A. Roza. Roza Pereira was now leading by three yards, but Lawrence's superior speed soon lessened the distance between the two swimmers and allowed him to touch the tape two-fifths of a second ahead.

100 Yards: 1. W. Lawrence (59.3/5); 2. L. Roza Pereira (60.3/5); 3. E. B. Roza (61); 4. A. A. Roza (61.1/5); 5. H. L. Ozorio.

440 Yards: 1. W. Lawrence (5 mins. 45.1/5); 2. L. Roza Pereira (5 mins. 45.3/5 sec.); 3. A. A. Roza (5 mins. 48.1/5); 4. J. Souza.

NOTHING IS WRONG WITH CRICKET

ONLY PLAYERS OF LONG AGO SIT IN JUDGMENT

PRESENT DAY GAME DEFENDED BY LONDON CRITIC

Just at the moment, when there are murmurs in the air of cricket no longer being what it had been in the grand old days when spectators fried eggs in their top hats; when it is said that batsmen are allowed by obsolete laws to score far too many runs; and when tears for the bowler are dropped by some who, perhaps, never reacted to the joy of striving, over after over, to beat a batsman on a pitch of the striker's choice, there has been played a cricket match—and a county match—which cheered the soul of all those who were privileged to see it, writes a special correspondent of the London Observer.

The match between Kent and Surrey, at Blackheath, in a victory for Kent by four wickets, was assuredly a remarkable game. It was characterised throughout by alternations of fortune, in which the bowler and then the batsman, or a combination of both, kept the crowd wondering what was to come next. But it did more than that: it so obviously provided enjoyment to those who were playing in it. Even when Woolley was hitting the ball unmercifully hard, and later, when Chalk and Todd regained their side's lost advantage, the Surrey bowlers and fieldmen, toiling in a great heat, were fully in the game. Sandham, for instance, who had a deal of trotting around to do, with that gesture of his which lifts his cap to the back of his head, as if to appeal to the bowler to spare him just for a few minutes, was still hopeful that Kent wickets would fall.

It was a game in which every single person was taking the keenest interest; and may it be said it was not alone of its kind. It is the fashion to decry modern cricket, more especially in a dry season, which must produce big scores, but he would be a clever man who could improve upon it.

THE L. B. W. LAW.

The law of cricket as it affects the matter of leg-before-wicket crops up perpetually. Those who are in favour of an alteration to the law are almost invariably to be found among cricketers who have now ceased to be active. Quite properly, they believe that in their day batsmen, and it is to be noticed that they are generally batsmen who fling a challenge down, commanded more strokes than we see in these days. In a spirit of disgust and contempt for the modern player, and in a charitable frame of mind to the bowler whom in their own day they would have depressed to zero point, they suggest that the ball pitching outside the off-stump, which would have hit the wicket but for the interposition of the batsman's pads, should be deemed to have taken a wicket.

Apart from the tremendous difficulty which an umpire must suffer to decide when a ball is turning back sharply whether or not it would have hit the wicket, it is fair to give sentence of death against a batsman who was attempting the accepted and normal stroke to the off? Is there to be a difference established in the mind of the umpire as to the occasions when the batsman was attempting a scoring stroke and when he was merely covering up? Woolley an astute observer would have seen twice in two overs move his feet across to the bowling of Gregory at Blackheath, making no attempt to play the ball, but making sure that the ball should

TENEMENT HOUSE LATRINES.

ALL FUTURE BUILDINGS TO MAKE PROVISION

A motion that all floors of tenement house erected in future shall have, partitioned off, one room or closet to constitute a latrine, was adopted at yesterday's meeting of the Sanitary Board.

There were present Mr. R. A. D.
Forrest, President, Hon. Mr. R. M.
Henderson, vice-President, Dr.
J. M. Gray, Medical Officer of Health, Mr. Wong Kwong-tin, Mr.
M. K. Lo, Mr. L. C. F. Bellamy,
Dr. Li Shu-fan, Dr. R. A. Castro
Basto, Mr. C. J. Roe, Secretary,
Mr. Im Ping-tseung, assistant Secretary.

The Medical Officer of Health moved: "That the Board is of the opinion that any floor in a tenement house as defined by Ordinance 1 of 1903 which has not thereon one room or closet partitioned off from the remainder of the floor and, designed to the satisfaction of the Board to contain a privy or urinal, shall be deemed to have insufficient latrine accommodation under Section 165 of the Ordinance. In such cases the Medical Officer of Health is hereby authorised to give the required notice on behalf of the Board for the provision of such latrine accommodation as he may deem adequate."

Dr. Gray explained that it was not his intention to ask that all tenement houses erected at the present time should comply with the motion and have a latrine on each floor. The motion merely meant that the requirement should apply to future buildings which were likely to be used as tenement houses.

The motion was accordingly amended as follows:

"That the Board is of the opinion that any floor in a tenement house hereafter erected or re-built or reconstructed to be a tenement house as defined by Ordinance 1 of 1903 which has not thereon one room or closet parti-tioned off from the remainder of the floor and, designed to the satisfaction of the Board to constitute a latrine, shall be deemed to have insufficient latrine accommodation under Section 165 of the Ordinance. In such cases the Medical Officer of Health is hereby authorised to give the required notice on behalf of the Board for the provision of such latrine accommodation as he may deem adequate."

Mr. L. C. F. Bellamy seconded the motion.

Dr. Li Shu-fan: I would like to ask the mover whether it would be satisfactory merely to install a urinal. My view is that changing the requirement to a latrine would be a much larger undertaking. It would increase the cost of the building and also the rent of the floor.

Better Provision.

The Chairman: It is intended to cover both flush and dry latrines. I do not think that it would be more expensive.

The Medical Officer of Health:
My idea was just to make better provision than that which generally exists in the tenement houses at the present time as regards latrine accommodation. I mentioned at the last meeting that latrine accommodation in many cases consists of a pot placed in the kitchen for the use of the female occupants. The idea is to encourage houses to use flush systems where possible, or a good type of dry latrine with proper ventilation as an improvement on the rather primitive arrangement existing at the present time.

Mr. M. K. Lo: I think it is a reasonable requirement, and support the motion.

The motion was duly carried.

Street Washing.

The Board also approved a minute by the President proposing the washing of pavements and sidewalks in the more densely populated areas in Hongkong and Kowloon.

In future, although the Department cannot undertake full street washing it intends to do a certain amount of washing under the verandahs especially where pavements are not washed by the rains, to clear them of spittle. Spittle has been one of the latent causes in spreading tuberculosis. It was understood that Government are in favour.

In regard to two minutes by the President relative to conservancy contracts for Apichau, Aberdeen, Pokfulam, Stanley and Taitam, the President explained that the minute was a formal one which came before the Board when the W. MacEwan, of Messrs. Mac-summoned for failing to report an accident in Stubbs Road on July 28, and for dangerous driving.

Traffic-Inspector Nicol stated that the defendant drove his car,
No. 1734, up Stubbs Road and it was alleged he rounded a bend above the Stubbs Road Garage on the wrong side and came into slight collision with car No. 936.

Defendant admitted the first summons, but denied the second.
On the charge of failing to report the accident, his Worship imposed a fine of $5. He dismissed the charge of dangerous driving, the witness for the prosecution being unable to remember the day on which the incident occurred.

NEGROES LYNCHED

MISSISSIPPI MOBS IN FIGHT WITH POLICE

Ashland, Miss., Aug. 14.
Mobs took the law into their own hands to-day and lynched two young negroes suspected of being implicated in the killing of a white man.

The two negroes had allegedly confessed to taking part in an attack on a white man, together with other negroes. While the two were being taken under escort to Michigan City, two mobs converged upon the prisoners and their guards and seized the two suspects.
There was no semblance of a trial nor was the resistance offered by the escort particularly hearty.
The negroes were hanged to a tree,
and the mob scattered.

The sheriff of the district later cut down the bodies and ordered a vigorous investigation in an effort to apprehend the ring-leaders of the mobs.—Reuter Special.

contracts fell due. In Kowloon and the City the work was now done by direct labour, but as the dairies on the south side of the Island were so scattered the work could not be done by direct labour as cheaply as by contract.

VOCE LEFT OUT OF NOTTS TEAM ON LAST DAY!

Angry Demonstration At Trent Bridge

SUFFERING FROM "SORE SHINS"

WILD RUMOURS OF CLUB DISSENSION

SENSATIONAL NEW TURN TO DISPUTE

LONDON, AUG. 14. THE VOCE CONTROVERSY, CONFINED HITHERTO TO DEBATE ON WHETHER HE SHOULD HAVE BEEN CHOSEN FOR ENGLAND'S FINAL TEST TEAM, TOOK A SENSATIONALLY FRESH TURN AT NOTTINGHAM TO-DAY.

Voce did not turn out this morning when the Australians resumed the second innings of their match against the Notts C. C. and a fairly large crowd, many present having attended largely to see Voce's leg theory exploited in what must have been an even more dramatic atmosphere than Saturday, showed their displeasure unmistakably.

A noisy demonstration occurred and recurred during the morning, a large section of the crowd yelling in chorus: "WHERE'S VOCE!"

STRAINED ATMOSPHERE ALL DAY

A strained atmosphere persisted throughout the day, accentuated by the circulation of all sorts of rumours.

After the crowd's demonstration when they saw Voce was not in the field, the Nottinghamshire club issued a statement to the effect that Voce was unable to turn out as he is suffering from sore shins.

VIGOROUS HOOTING.

A section of the crowd were not impressed by this explanation and imagined that Voce's absence was due to an Australian protest following the success of Voce in his leg-theory bowling on Saturday.

They hooted vigorously while the Australians were batting, their temper hardly being improved when Brown and Kippax got together after two fairly early bowling successes and treated the Notts bowling lightly.

Finally, the Australians declared with Brown and Kippax still undefeated.

FRESH SCENE.

A fresh scene occurred immediately after Nottingham had gone out to bat.

Right at the beginning of the innings, Darling bowled an over-pitched ball which narrowly missed the batsman, the incident, trivial as it was, causing an uproar and catcalls about "body-line" from the Nottingham supporters.

DENIAL OF RESIGNATIONS.

Meanwhile, all sorts of rumours were circulating and the club had to issue another official statement in the afternoon, denying a report that several members of the club committee had tendered their resignations.

THE MATCH.

The match, much the least interesting of the events of the day, ended in a draw in favour of the Australians.

Brown scored 100 not out and Kippax 75 not out in Australia's second innings, Woodfull applying the closure with only two wickets down and a lead of 274 runs. Notts played out time leisurely and had scored 128 for 6 when stumps were drawn. During the afternoon, Grimmett took his hundredth wicket of the present tour.

The close of play scores were:

Australia: 237 (Woodfull 81; Voce 8 for 66) and 230 for 2 wickets declared (Brown 100 not out; Kippax 75 not out).

Notts: 183 (Grimmett, 4 for 70) and 128 for 6 wickets.—Reuter.

Government Factory Recommended

(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, Aug. 14. Mr. Carl Vinson, author of the Bill for naval ship and air force expansion, said to-day that he is submitting his five-year naval air development programme to the Clark Howells Investigating Board.

He said that he is seeking the immediate construction of a Government Aircraft Factory at Philadelphia, and added that the Pensacola training base should be expanded.

Questioned about the naval situation on the water, he declared that he was strongly opposed to an alteration in the 5-5-3 ratio.—United Press.

OFFICIAL LETTERS BURNED IN BOX

Cork, Aug. 15.

A series of outrages in different parts of the Irish Free State, chiefly aimed at causing a breakdown in communications, are causing the de Valera Government anxiety.

No trace has apparently been discovered of the persons responsible, and there is nothing to indicate, beyond the fact that their activities are anti-government, what factions they represent.

Telegram and telephone wires in many parts of the Free State were temporarily isolated until Post Office engineers had effected repairs.

Another incident occurred in Dublin, where burning petrol-soaked rags were thrown into a letter box yesterday. The letter-box was the one where official correspondence is usually posted. Hundreds of letters were destroyed.—Reuter.

BADLY SHAKEN AND BRUISED

HITLER'S RUSH VISIT

Berlin, Aug. 15. General Goering, Herr Hitler's right-hand man, who was engaged in directing the plebiscite campaign in South Germany, was injured last night in a motor smash.

General Goering was driving the car, at fairly high speed it is believed, and it collided with a lorry at Badaibling in Bavaria. The car was badly wrecked and General Goering was taken to hospital suffering from serious bruises and abrasions about the back. His face and knees were badly cut.

He was taken to the hospital at Rosenheim, but declined to stay there and travelled to his home at Ober-Salzburg, where he was visited by Herr Hitler at one o'clock this morning.—Reuter.

NO SPECIAL CAUSE FOR CONCERN

Two Hours' Operation At Rosenheim

(Special to "Telegraph")

Berlin, Aug. 15. General Goering was driving his car from Munich to Ober-Salzburg when the crash occurred.

Examination at the hospital revealed injuries of not a very serious nature to his face, knees and back. It is stated that he underwent an operation that lasted two hours, mainly spent in cleaning and stitching up cuts. He appeared to have withstood the shock well.

The doctor said: "There is no special cause for immediate concern."

After he had been attended to, General Goering was taken to Ober-Salzburg at midnight and Hitler visited him an hour later.—United Press.

X-RAY SATISFACTORY.

Reuter says that General Goering was X-rayed at Rosenheim, with satisfactory results. Glass splinters were extracted from his knees and face and he left for home heavily bandaged.

REQUEST FOR AUSTRIAN ARMY INCREASE

No Official Confirmation Yet Forthcoming

London, Aug. 15. In connection with the rumour, hitherto unconfirmed, that Allied and Little Entente circles have been asked to allow an increase in the Italian Army, and that London, Rome and Paris have raised no objections, the Daily Herald's Rome correspondent says the Prince von Starhemberg saw Italian Fascist leaders yesterday and they agreed to an increase necessary to enable Austria to defend her independence.—Reuter.

New York, Aug. 14.

A message from Vineyard Haven, Mass., states that Yankee endorsed her claims to defend the America's Cup by defeating Vanitie by five minutes in a forty-mile race. Rainbow was third, over fourteen minutes behind the winner. Westmore went aground, after occupying third place, half-way over the course.—Reuter.

SAAR NAZIS PROTEST

STALK OUT OF DIET

CHARGES AGAINST COMMISSION

(Special to "Telegraph")

Saarbruecken, Aug. 14. Strong protests were lodged in the Saar Diet to-day by Nazi members, who accused the Saar Commission of a lack of impartiality in Saar affairs.

All the members of the German National Front, including all the Saar Nazis, walked out while the Saar Diet was in session to mark their protest against an attack on the late President Hindenburg and Herr Hitler.

They complain that the Government Commission allowed the attack to be made without attempting to intervene.

The walk-out was also staged as a protest against the continued confiscation of German Front documents.—Reuter Special.

PUNISHMENT FITS THE CRIME

"FREE-RIDERS" ON CANTON BUSES

MADE TO WALK 25 MILES

(Our Own Correspondent).

Canton, Aug. 14.

Over a hundred people who had been guilty of travelling on motor buses without paying their fares were driven out to Lung Ngan Tung, about twenty-five miles from the city, under escort of police and gendarmes, dropped by the roadside and compelled to walk back to their home. This was the punishment inflicted on them instead of the imposition of fines.

For a very long time past, it has been the custom of soldiers and Government employees to take free rides on the buses, so much so that these vehicles have been packed with these people, ordinary passengers being unable to obtain seats. The companies operating the buses have thus suffered heavy losses.

The bus companies have on many occasions sent in petitions to the police and military authorities on the matter, and although orders have been issued that all soldiers and Government employees must pay the legal fares, no notice has been taken of the instructions.

Finally, to-day gendarmes and police held up the buses at various points and arrested all who were taken into custody, and they were all later taken out to Lung Ngan Tung. From which point they were compelled to walk back to the city, as no means of communication were available.

WILD STORIES OF "RED" ATTACK ON FOOCHOW

FALSIFIED BY NAVAL REPORTS

NEAREST FORCE 20 MILES AWAY

AT LIENKONG

GRADUALLY BEING SUPPRESSED

Highly coloured exaggerations of the situation in the vicinity of Foochow have been circulated since last evening.

Actually, while there appears to be an undercurrent of unrest among the populace, the city is perfectly quiet and it is stated that the Communists in Fukien are gradually being suppressed.

One report, published below, suggests that the Communists are battering away at the walls of Foochow!

Naval wireless messages from the commander of H.M.S. Witch show that there is absolutely no truth in any report of any fighting in the immediate vicinity of Foochow.

Twenty miles away. The latest naval message declares that the small force of Communists (one to two thousand strong) who were reported a week ago to have approached close to the city have been driven north to Lienkong and that the other group which captured the town of Shikow a little previously have now been driven back towards Xaping.

The nearest Communists to the city, according to British naval intelligence, are twenty miles away to the north-east and these probably do not exceed 1,500 in number.

Following is a Reuter report from Nanking received this morning, apparently derived from Chinese sources. It should be treated with the greatest reserve.

"FIERCE FIGHTING."

Nanking, Aug. 15. The situation at Foochow is easier with the arrival of Government reinforcements comprising the Forty-Ninth Division.

Fierce fighting is going on round the walls of Foochow, while the forces within the city are opening heavy gunfire, shelling the Communists' positions.

The Chinese warships guarding the city are laying off Wanshou-chiao. The Government reinforcements were immediately rushed into the front lines in a vigorous counter-attack against the Communists.

The Government authorities are confident that the Government troops will be able to repulse the Communists and hold Foochow.—Reuter.

NEW ORLEANS SCANDAL

CITY AND STATE STILL AT WAR

COURT GRANTS INJUNCTION

(Special to "Telegraph")

New York, Aug. 14.

There were two fresh developments in the extraordinary political feud between the city authorities of New Orleans and the Huey Long government of the State of Louisiana.

A special session of the State Legislature was called at Baton Rouge last night for the express purpose of passing emergency legislation to deprive the officials of New Orleans of all power.

In New Orleans, the Mayor's suit for an injunction against the State Militia was successful, the Judge granting a permanent injunction against the militia retaining occupation of the office of the Registrar of Voters.

POLITICAL FEUD.

It will be recalled that the militia seized the office after battering down the doors, acting on the orders of Governor Oscar Allen, a henchman of Huey Long, on the pretext that the city was permitting the illegal registration of voters and had violated the law by moving the office from the City Hall.

The political fight is the result of a feud between Senator Huey Long and the Mayor of New Orleans, Mr. Walmsley, which has been carried on ever since the last election in the City when the Huey Long clique were defeated.—United Press.

Mary estimated that the chance of a reconciliation were few, said, regarding rumours that she had been crying around the city, only talking with Fairbanks in the train, and that she had been on the road, she was sent to the Hollywood Hospital for treatment.

HOTEL TRAGEDY

GERMAN COUPLE POISONED

AGE OLD STORY

A German man and girl who were found dead at an hotel in London recently were the subject of an inquest at Westminster, when it was established that they died from poisoning.

They had registered at the hotel in the names of Mr. and Mrs. Thimann, but the girl was afterwards identified as Ursula Klee (21). The man's Christian name was Max, and he was 31.

The first name called at the inquest was that of Robert Kolen, who was stated to be the employer of the couple. Mr. Kolen, however, would not give evidence, as he considered his knowledge of English was not sufficient, and there was no interpreter present.

Evidence of identification was then given by P. S. Nicholls, the Coroner's officer. He said he was present when Mr. Kolen attended at the mortuary and identified the bodies as Ursula Klee, a laboratory assistant, and Max Thimann, a resident of Cologne, whose wife at the moment was resident in Potsdam.

The officer added that Thimann came to this country in June on a demonstration course for a Liverpool firm, and Klee came to London on June 30. In her passport book there was the return half of an excursion ticket, and it looked as if she came to England to join Thimann.

TWO LETTERS FOUND.

At the hotel where they were found possession was taken of two letters and two glasses which smelt of cyanide of potassium.

One of the glasses was quite close to the girl, and she had obviously drunk from it. She was lying fully dressed on the bed, and the man was lying on the edge of the bed as if he had collapsed on his back. The position in which they were found was consistent with their having drunk from separate glasses. The door of the room had been locked.

Two letters in the man's handwriting were produced. They were written in German, and the Coroner read the translation. The first, he said, was addressed to the man's parents and it read:—

"My dear, dear parents,—I shall give you very great sorrow through the step I am going to take. I am going to ask you to forgive me. I see take this step that I am going to take the right one. You will have the comfort that it is an act which is an expression of my own free will. Forgive me. I owe you much more than I can ever express, or say clearly in words. I wish you a joyous farewell, which will leave no great pain behind.—Always your grateful son, Max."

The other letter was to the man's wife and read:—

WORKED TOGETHER.

"My Dear 'Pet,—Forgive me all, although I know it is more than I have any right to ask, but to make amends for the wrong I have done you I know no other way against the fate which is pursuing me. I cannot fight. As penance I see only this step, which I am taking of my own free will and full knowledge of what I am doing: I kiss you.—Max."

The Coroner's officer gave evidence of a conversation he heard between the Deputy-Coroner and Mr. Kolen, in which it was stated that Thimann and the girl were working together in the same laboratory near Cologne and a love affair had developed between them. The man had been sent to England by his firm to demonstrate some chemical apparatus in Liverpool. Far from being insane, the man was extremely clever and able, and there was no

Mix all the dry ingredients well together, the gammon being chopped or minced. Bind all with the two beaten eggs, form into a sausage shape, and place on a scalded, floured cloth. Untie the tapes, unroll the meat shape carefully, and leave till cold. When sending it to table, coat it thickly with the browned crumbs, place on a pretty dish, and garnish with slices of tomato and sprigs of bright green parsley. evidence whatever pointing to irregularity of his mind.

Mr. Stanley B. Till, the assistant manager of the Grosvenor Hotel, said the couple arrived together at the hotel on Monday. They engaged a room as man and wife, and the register was signed in the names of Max and Ursula Thimann. They were last seen alive on a Monday evening, when they left the hotel about a quarter to nine.

On the following evening the reception clerk informed witness that no reply could be obtained from their room by the maid, who wanted to clean it. They had had no food during the day, and nothing had been heard of them.

The door of the room was found bolted, and it was eventually forced. The curtains were still drawn and the couple were dead on the bed.

A doctor stated there was nothing abnormal about the bodies. The woman was not an expectant mother.

The Coroner, summing-up, said this was a tragedy of a young German who came to this country to demonstrate a chemical process and was joined by the girl.

"They stayed together as man and wife," he said. "For reasons

CHILDREN'S DIET

Baby That Thrived on Eels

"PREHISTORIC WAYS"

Children's diet was the chief topic discussed at a recent session of the National Conference on Maternity and Child Welfare, at Birmingham, and an M.O.H., who was of the opinion that babies were being fed on too invalid a diet, told of a child of seven months who thrived on eels.

Dr. Eric Pritchard, medical director of the Infants' Hospital, London, said that to reform the national dietary attention must be concentrated on the child. There appeared to be quite commonly an element of contrariness inherent in children, inducing them to hanker after forbidden things, and to show a distaste for those foisted upon them. Advantage of these inherent tendencies might be taken to press upon them to take the sort of food which one wished them ultimately to avoid, and make it difficult for them to obtain those things which were really good for them.

Dr. G. A. Auden, school medical officer of Birmingham, said that if they could centre their propaganda on increasing the consumption of milk in all classes, they would be doing great work in improving nutrition.

Dr. Waller, medical officer of health at St. Katharine's College, Poplar, speaking on, "Diet After Babyhood," said that he did not believe anyone knew anything at all concerning the ideal diet for a baby. There was evidence that a boy could eat a wide range of foodstuffs and thrive.

Dr. Waller said that it was his opinion that babies were being fed on too invalid a diet. He was sceptical as to the advantage of allowing babies to feed only on milk. He had known of a mother giving her seven months old child eels, and it thrived on them.

"Get back to the prehistoric ways of feeding the child," Dr. Waller urged. "Go back to breast feeding and the open-air life. The child thrived under prehistoric conditions, and prehistoric diet did not consist of another mammal's milk after the mother's milk had ceased."

which one can only assume they evidently made up their minds to commit suicide, and he left letters which confirmed that intention. The method they used was cyanide of potassium.

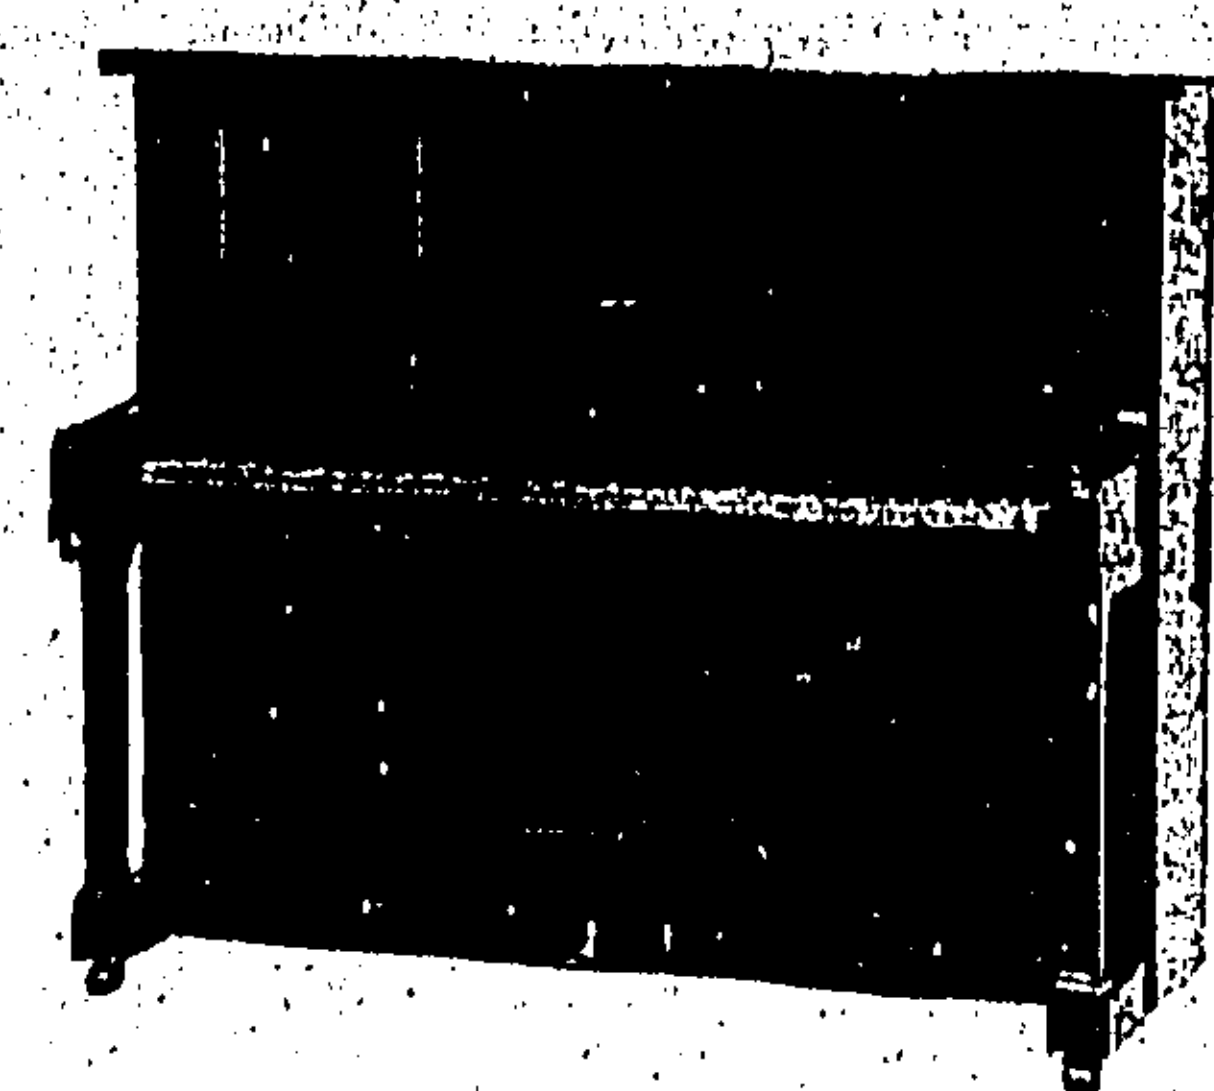

NOT NAZI REFUGEES.

"I think it is only right to say that statements have appeared in the Press that these two unfortunate people were refugees from the Nazi Government, but we have not the slightest evidence to that effect. There is nothing to show they had ever taken any part in politics at all.

"Instead of committing suicide for motives of fear of what would happen when they returned to Germany, it is just the age-old story of an illicit love and passion, which ended, as so often it does, in tragedy.

"It is possible they were both overtaken with remorse, and he wrote the letter to his wife which suggests that both had made up their minds that they should commit suicide.

"There is absolutely no evidence to show the state of their minds at the time, so I can do nothing else except record a verdict that they both died from the effects of potassium cyanide and that they both killed themselves, there being insufficient evidence to show the state of their minds."

SOPHIE KERR'S LATEST SUCCESS IN ROMANTIC PROBLEM FICTION "STAY OUT OF MY LIFE!"

CHAPTER XXIX

It was Mrs. Lowe who took charge of the situation. Pretending anxiety over Mrs. Jackson's baggage, she set her and Amy both to making inquiries. Then she took them back to Amy's home, talking all the while of trivialities.

Once there, Amy had to be busy and Mary Jackson put on an apron and helped. "It's nice to be in a kitchen again," she said. "I was getting sick of boarding houses and hotels. I may be pretty awkward at first. You were very good to let me come, Amy."

"I'm thankful you could come," Amy told her. "I couldn't shut up the house and stay with Mother and Father. They love me too much. They're so close to me it kills them to see me unhappy. You love Howard the most. I won't feel you breaking your heart about me all the time. I'm sure they're relieved I'm staying here. You understand. It's too much strain on all of us."

"My dear," said Mary Jackson, "I understand very well. Love is much harder to endure than hate, and what your parents feel for you I feel for Howard. If you know what it has cost me to leave him free and not hang on him and depend on him and simply clamp my life on his—it wasn't fun, you can believe it."

"Oh, why didn't you come sooner and be with him? I ought to have insisted—I'm so sorry! I didn't mean to crowd you out. Really I didn't. I didn't think."

"No, I didn't want to come. I only wanted the one glimpse of him. I couldn't have stood any length of time with him, any more than you can stand being with your parents. I'm selfish about Howard—I feel so outraged and—violent about his going into this war. Even when I think that there are hundreds and thousands of mothers who are giving their sons, it doesn't change my feeling. There's no consolation in other people's trouble for our own."

"That's exactly what I've been saying to myself, but I didn't dare say it out loud. I'm glad you said it. And I wished, I can't tell you how much I wished and hoped that he'd be rejected—I mean by the physical examiners. I hope still that he won't be able to pass the air tests. Ground work isn't as dangerous as actual flying."

The two women exchanged warm smiles. "You didn't tell Howard that, I know," said Howard's mother. "Of course not. I don't want to clamp on him any more than you do. But it was awful to keep still. And now—this empty house—and he won't be coming back to-night, nor to-morrow—"

"But he'll be coming back sometime," said Mary Jackson steadily. "And something in her voice reminded Amy that Mary Jackson's husband had died when he was not much older than Howard. It brought her out of her depth of self-commiseration with a sharp jerk and she gave Mary Jackson a fervent, penitential hug. "I won't make another moan, not even a small one," she said. "If I do I give you leave to beat me." Her strength began to flow back like a turn in a grave illness. She stopped thinking that Howard was away, but only that he was coming back.

The summer began to weave a definite pattern. After Commencement Marburg usually fell into a placid inertia, stirring only for small social events, but it was not so this year. So many Marburg boys had gone to the war that there was constant change—women talking over men's jobs, meetings, rallies, entertainments to raise money, families of soldiers to be looked after. Amy and Mary Jackson did what they could, and Amy realized her plan of a music class and took the organist post, which meant working twice on Sundays, and rehearsing the choir besides. She was very busy, but her life was actually lived in the letters she wrote to Howard and his letters to her. She waited for the postman feverishly.

And Howard wrote faithfully, even though most of his letters were by necessity very brief. He was well, he said, in spite of heat and hard work. He had passed his tests triumphantly. He was training for the air now. He hoped to get leave for a few days when he had won his wings. He wished he could fly back and land in their garden. "I dream about you in the garden," he wrote. "And I think of you every minute. You are always with me even when I'm working hardest." He sent her a photograph in his uniform, but she did not like it. He looked rather older and alien to her and she put it out of sight.

Miss Rosa came to see Mary Jackson soon after her arrival and the two women liked one another well enough to promote their slight kinship by blood into a familiar cousinship. Since Miss Rosa's house was central and spacious, she folded up her bridge tables and turned her big parlour into a Red Cross workroom, with a grumbling good humour and a hidden pleasure to be once more active and in the thick of things. She had a war map and moved pins about on it with more gusto than accuracy. And it was Miss Rosa who brought Jane back into Amy's consciousness, through Mary Jackson, who told her: "Rosa's always talking about that niece of hers, Jane, how clever she is, and how attractive and all that she's doing—and she must be rather extraordinary, for I take it Rosa's far from being a doling aunt, under any circumstances. You knew her very well, didn't you?"

Amy was dressing Nancy, fresh and sweet from her afternoon nap, curling the ends of the child's hair over her finger in the way she liked to see them. "Oh yes," she said at last, "we were intimate friends. Jane and I. She is awfully clever, yes, and quite beautiful, dark and so all!"

Mary Jackson went on: "Rosa told me all about the crush Jane had on Howard—Amy, dear, I'm not saying anything painful, am I? I understood that you knew all about it, and Rosa said frankly that Howard hadn't cared a snap about Jane and he told her so. Jane apparently took it rather badly, but she got over it right away, according to Rosa."

Amy brushed the last curl over and took out the blue ribbon to tie around Nancy's head. "It all seems a long time ago," she said slowly. "We were all much younger—and took ourselves so seriously. Miss Rosa and Jane were nice to Howard when he first came. Of course he didn't know anyone here, and he was in and out of the house a lot and Jane was rather crazy about him. No, I don't think of her often—but it did disturb me at the time. I was fond of Jane—and then, I was so terribly in love with Howard—"

She paused and continued more quickly. "Jane's changed a good bit. When she comes back to Marburg now she's rather gorgeous, grand clothes and talking about the big deals she's put through, you know. Captain of industry stuff—Marburg looks pretty dim and small to her now. And that's perfectly natural. There now, sweetie-pie—" she spoke to Nancy—"you look very stylish! What do you want to do, play with your blocks, or come down and sing with Mother?"

"Nancy will sing."

"And what will Nancy sing?" asked Mary.

"Nancy will sing for Muvver," declared the little girl.

"And I'll come and listen," said Mary. As they went down she added: "Rosa says Jane will be coming again in the fall for a few days. I'm somewhat curious to see her."

"Well," said Amy, "Jane's always exciting and interesting to see and to hear, too. She's the only person I ever knew who—who made her own world—and lived in it without any special attention to reality. Not that I'm sure she's happier for it—"

"She does sound interesting and exciting!"

"Yes," replied Amy, settling

Jane's child beside her on the piano bench, "Jane's all of that. Now come along. Miss Nancy—"A frog he would a-wool go—begin when Mother strikes the note."

And Nancy obediently began. As her voice rose silver clear and true in the simple tune, Amy looked over her shoulder at Mary Jackson. She didn't know why she should choose that moment, but suddenly she wanted to tell Howard's mother her own great piece of news. Perhaps she wanted to exercise the restless spirit of Jane, evoked by the talk about her. For what she had to tell would banish Jane still farther from her, and build higher the wall of separation between them. "Nancy's going to have a little brother to sing duets with along about next March," she said. "There's some real interest and excitement for you."

JURIST ABROAD

DR. TA IN-TSEN ON BRITISH JUDICIARY

London, Aug. 14.

Dr. Ta In-tsen, Vice-President of the Judicial Yuan, who has been making an extensive study tour of European legal systems, has just completed a thorough enquiry of the English judicial system.

During his investigations in England, Dr. Ta has met the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Chief Justice and has visited the criminal and civil courts during session, also the county courts, police courts and prisons of London.

The Chinese jurist is leaving for Belgium on August 16, and, after staying there for some time, will leave for Holland, Germany, Austria and Italy, and is coming to China via the United States.

In an interview with Reuter, Dr. Ta said that he was most favourably impressed with the functioning of British justice, particularly because, in the English system, there was so much respect for tradition and the peoples' customs; also the British were prepared to adapt their laws to their wishes, which he regarded as essential for the true carrying on of justice.

Dr. Ta added that the British system of circuit judges was excellent, and thought that it was a good idea to take up the system in China, owing to the large stretches of territory which must be covered.

Therefore, Dr. Ta said, he intended to recommend the circuit system to the Chinese Government. With regard to the British jury system, Dr. Ta said he admired it, but he doubted whether it would be practicable in China.

Dr. Ta was greatly impressed with the English police court system, and he said he much enjoyed the privilege of sitting on the Bench on several occasions.—Our Own Correspondent.

LONDON MEN GOING FEMININE!

IN THEIR WEARING APPAREL

London, Aug. 13.
Men, here, are going all feminine in their clothes, a recent trade exhibition showed.

Such articles as ankle socks, knitted tan-o-shanters, yellow, green and blue silk sports shirts would never have been accepted for summer sports wear a few years ago.

The same tendency can be seen right through the modern man's wardrobe. He no longer wears heavy woolen undergarments, but silk articles that closely suggest "undies". His dressing-gowns are always silk with striking patterns. His suspenders are narrow and in delicate shades.

One of the most interesting features of the show was a soft checked black and white silk shirt with collar attached which the manufacturers are certain will be the accepted 1940 evening wear for men with a dinner jacket.

Another item was a new stretchable fabric shirt which contains no rubber but will stretch and give to movement like elastic. It is claimed for it that a man would be able to wear a shirt two sizes too small for him with comfort. The practical use would be extreme ease and comfort combined with neatness. The material is absolutely unshrinkable.

Single-breasted suits will be more popular this Fall, but a three piece combination of double-breasted jacket to be worn with either plus four or trousers will be shown.—United Press.

LAND ANNUITIES

NEAR RIOTS IN CORK; FARMER SHOT

Cork, Aug. 14.
Trouble over unpaid land annuities caused near riots in County Cork to-day.

One farmer was killed, seven wounded and 25 injured when the police charged and fired on several thousand farmers who adopted a threatening attitude, as a protest against the sale of cattle belonging to a farmer who had not paid his land annuities.

Mrs. O'Neill, sister of the well-known Dail Deputy, dashed across the line of fire in the saloon and brought a priest who administered the Last Sacrament to Jeremiah Lynch, who had been fatally shot by the police.—Reuter.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET IRREGULAR YESTERDAY

The following reports on the New York stock market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz: The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market: Stocks were sluggish and irregularly lower in response to the Treasury announcement removing the inflation factor from the nationalization of silver. Silver issues declined very heavily. Traders were not bullish; however, they were lacking in reaction to continue support. Rail, chemical, motor and farm equipment issues followed the decline of silver shares. Steel issues have receded on the basis of poor operations' reports. The decline in commodities reflected the nationalization of silver and also the end of the heat in the mid-West. Curb stocks were unable to rally in face of scattered liquidation of utility and mining shares. United States Government issues led the way in an irregular advance in bonds, which followed railroads.

S. C. & F. New York office cable: The market was extremely dull and slightly lower. Traction issues were strong on rumours that a unification plan is near. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation announces that 42 per cent. of its loans have been repaid. The Steel Institute reports that operations are off 3 1/2 points at 22.3 per cent. of capacity. The Good-year Tyre Co.'s half-year earnings totalled $2,617,000 against a loss of $738,000 during the corresponding period of last year. The Oil & Gas Journal reports that during the week ending August 11th the daily average output of crude oil was 2,587,000 barrels against 2,611,000 barrels the previous week. Grams auto output for the week ending August 4th was 57,000 against 58,000 the previous week. The Detroit Edison's report for the year ended July 31st showed a net profit of $7,202,000 against $5,863,000 the previous year. The Pacific Gas has earned 67 cents per share for the half-year against 87 cents per share the corresponding period of last year. The Republic Steel Corp. for the half-year has earned $1.35 per Preferred share against a loss of $2,029,000 the previous year. The Ohio Oil Co. has earned 25 cents per share against a loss of $3,140,000 last year. Business done: 530,000.

less inflation talk, private reports indicating an increase of 1,000,000 bales in the Indian crop and the threat of a general strike in the textile mills. Buyers and sellers were apart on the price of "spot" cotton. The textile market was quieter. We anticipate further moderate declines.

Rubber: Profit-taking appears on advances. The underdone was steady. The Trade is still holding off.

Sugar: The market was irregular, awaiting action by Washington regarding the Cuban Trade Treaty.

JAPANESE NAVAL POLICY

Reports of the likelihood of Japan denouncing the Washington Naval Treaty are not surprising. They naturally follow the reception which has been accorded to the feelers sent out from Tokyo regarding the Japanese desire to achieve equality with the United States and Britain. It has been made evident that Japan's insistence on this demand would be met with opposition, and to this fact may be attributed the reported intention of the Japanese Government to denounce the Treaty. The presumption is that if Japan is unable to bring the United States and Britain round to her viewpoint, she will, by disengaging herself from the obligations laid down in the Washington agreement, preserve for herself a free hand regarding future naval expansion. In short, denunciation of the Treaty would be another step along the path which she has marked out for herself. At the moment, there is no official confirmation of the reported intention, but it is pointed out by the Japanese Embassy in Washington that a strong sentiment exists in Japan for action along these lines. This may be taken to indicate that the Tokyo Government is anxious to see what the reactions of the other interested Powers would be to such a move. It is the old story of sounding world opinion in advance, which is characteristic of Japanese diplomacy. The trouble so far, in regard to the forthcoming Naval Conference, has been that Japan, whilst repeatedly throwing out hints as to her likely attitude, has not seen fit to make a definite official declaration. The consequence has been to increase the speculation regarding the line likely to be taken, although enough has been hinted to show that a bold bid will be made to secure a revision of the existing restrictions. It will not, however, be an easy matter for Japan to convince the world that there is any real call for variation of the ratios laid down at the Washington Conference. There is not at present, nor in prospect, any threat to Japanese security. Moreover, Japan has an infinitely smaller sea zone to protect than either the United States or Britain. In the circumstances, the Tokyo Government will have great difficulty in establishing a case for revision of existing agreements in her favour. But the situation would undoubtedly take a serious turn were Japan to cut herself adrift from co-operative effort with the other Powers and strike out on a course of her own.

NOTES OF THE DAY

THE TEST ROW

It needs only one more thing to give the much-maligned M.C.C. Committee a week of thoroughly sleepless nights. That would be an announcement by Larwood, objecting to being thrust into the back-grounds by the Voce controversy, that he is willing to play in the Final Test. Not that it would make any important difference—other than providing another weapon for the critics of England's policy in the leg-theory business. Here, of course, it is impossible to get at the rights and wrongs of the dispute. When one noted journalist declares that the Australians are resentful of Voce's tactics and another, of equally high repute, avers that they see no resemblance between Voce leg-theory and the objectionable body-line form of attack, where is the mere reader to go for the correct answer? It may not even be true, as appearances seem to suggest, that the M.C.C. are fudging using their most effective attack for fear of causing offence. It is quite possible that they have studied both the methods of Voce and Larwood and have decided that they prefer to play the Australians at ordinary cricket, not a new-fangled form of the ancient game, whether the decision means victory or defeat. Tom Clarke talks rot when he condemns any suggestion of playing Voce on a single performance. Voce's capabilities were well-known before Saturday. But he may still be right in commending the Selectors for declining to be stampeded.

HOW TOURISTS PAY

The value of what are called "invisible exports" in a nation's economy is clearly illustrated by recent figures showing just what the tourist trade is worth to France. During 1933, for instance, American tourists spent about 1,500,000,000 francs in France. In that year, French exports to the United States were a little more than half that value—803,000,000 francs, to be exact. In other words, as far as the United States is concerned, the tourist business is worth twice as much to France as is foreign trade. There is one other interesting little thing about it. French authorities have tabulated the way in which the tourist's money is spent in France: and they have found that just 7 per cent. of it goes for what might be called wine, women and song. That, considering the popular tradition about the tourist's way of amusing himself in Paris, seems surprisingly low.

WAR'S AFTERMATH

A forest fire recently swept through a part of Apremont Forest, near Chalon-sur-Marne, France. Immediately the air was filled with the crash of exploding shells, which jarred the countryside and put the fire-fighters in grave danger. Bitter fighting took place in this forest during the war. Many shells were shot into it. Some of them were "duds"—had defective fuses, or something—and failed to explode. So, during all the years since, they lay there, waiting for the fire to come and touch them off. There is something ghastly about the thought of these messengers of death biding their time in the depth of a peaceful forest. But they simply parallel the effects of war in human relations. War leaves many unexploded shells—hatreds, jealousies, suspicions, injustices, desires for revenge—and they lie inert, sometimes, for many years... waiting for the moment of heat that will blow them up and let them destroy human lives.

MAKING MATTERS WORSE

It is an ironic circumstance that the drought should cut American wheat production to the lowest point in a generation, just at the time when the government has been spending huge sums in an effort to reduce farm production. The American government's plan has been to increase the farmer's income by persuading him to reduce his acreage. Right into the middle of this programme has come a great natural catastrophe which has knocked the bottom right out of everything. Estimates at Washington vary but they all agree that wheat farmers will suffer a loss of not less than a thousand million dollars because of the drought. The only income many will get this year will be the AAA benefit payments, made for acreage limitations which the drought makes insignificant. The whole wheat problem, like the AAA programme, was enough to begin with. The drought simply intensifies complexity of a puzzle that was already far too involved.

EUROPE SAFE AGAINST WAR?

By MILTON BRONNER

IS Europe insured against war for the next 10 years? Are the prospects for European peace better to-day than they have been for some time?

It looks so to me, despite the flood of loose war talk. France and Germany are like two little boys with chips on their shoulders, but "one is afraid, and the other isn't".

France is afraid that another war might bleed her white and spell her doom even if she won. Germany isn't ready, and her leaders wonder what would happen if war came, and they had to call up Jews, Socialists, Communists, trade unionists, and Catholics, and put rifles in their hands.

Such troops might be more dangerous to Nazi officers than to the enemy.

The main danger is some unexpected and unpredictable event such as was the murder of Archduke Ferdinand of Austria at Sarajevo 20 years ago. On form, neither France nor Germany wants war, and there is reason to believe that even apparently jingo happenings—the menacing speech of Germany's Rudolph Hess, and the hasty visit of France's Foreign Minister, Mr. Barthou to England—may be paving the way to peace rather than war.

HESS KNOWS BETTER.

Hess' speech amounts to whistling in the dark to keep up German courage. He assured France of Germany's peaceful intentions, but got the hurrah boys busy by asserting that, if France invaded Germany, France would have to fight a united nation.

He knows better. He knows that only a part of the Germans would be united. And he knows that even that part is ill-prepared for a fight with a nation armed to the teeth with every weapon of modern warfare.

It is true that both nations are nervous. France is nervous about Germany of 65,000,000 people threatening to rearm, despite the Versailles Treaty. Germany is equally nervous lest France start a "preventive" war.

DOOMED EVEN IF VICTOR.

France wants peace so she can develop her colonial empire, but also because another war would just about bleed her white and be her finish—even if she won.

Hence her sudden jump into friendliness with Soviet Russia, her frantic efforts to woo Poland, since the latter signed a peace pact with Germany, her careful nursing of the Little Entente (Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia), and her assiduous pursuit of mutual understandings with Great Britain.

Hitler, leader of Germany, also needs peace. Even if he desired a war, he is to-day not prepared to make it. Despite rumours to the contrary, there is no tangible evidence that Germany has any adequate supply of heavy artillery, tanks or other offensive weapons forbidden her by the Versailles Treaty.

GERMANY NOT READY.

Her splendid civilian air fleet might be converted into bombers, but she has no visible force of fighting planes. She has abundance of man power, but not enough rifles and machine guns to make them effective. Her foreign situation does not encourage a war.

She is even more isolated than she was on the eve of 1914. The only strong power even half friendly is Italy, and that country has traditionally been loath to be on the opposite side from England.

But it is not only the military and the foreign situations which act as brakes upon Hitler. The internal situation makes peace almost imperative.

Hitler still has to consolidate his power. The recent "purge," during which some of his former trusted associates were killed, shows his danger right within his own Nazi ranks. This blood-bath has probably made Hitler's new enemies thirsting for revenge.

PLEDGES ARE NOT KEPT.

He has left many of his promises unfulfilled. He has not closed the big department stores to make a holiday for the middle class of small shopkeepers.

He has not divided the big Junker estates among the land-hungry peasants. He has not yet conquered the bugbear of unemployment.

Outside his own party, his outlook is bleak. His persecutions of the Jews have made them his enemies to a man. The same applies to the Socialists, Communists, and trades unionists, whose organizations he destroyed.

Arrests and threats to Catholics have largely alienated adherents of that powerful church.

REICHSWEHR IN DOUBT.

The Steel Helmets, composed of conservative veterans of the World War, are less than lukewarm. Final stand of the regular army, the Reichswehr, is problematical.

Finally and vastly significant is that in the Four-Power Pact among France, Germany, Italy and Great Britain, the time limitation was 10 years. The same period was stipulated in his peace pact with Poland.

That means that Hitler estimates he needs at least that amount of by-thening space. If he got into a first-class war now, he would have to call up all his available manpower, including all those hundreds of thousands of men who bitterly hate his regime.

WOULD RAISE UP NEW PERIL.

He would have to put into their hands rifles, machine guns, and hand grenades, a course that might be more dangerous for Hitler and his henchmen than for the enemy.

But in 10 years the picture will be different. The manpower of to-day will be middle-aged by then and can be left at home or put to work in the factories and on the farms.

The boys of to-day, who are 8 and 9 years old, will then be of military age. They will have been moulded in the Nazi form. They will have learned the Nazi version of history.

They are the cannon fodder of the morrow. They will grow to manhood with no recollections of the horrors of the last war. They will be taught the glory of dying heroes' deaths for the Fatherland—and Hitler.

They will be ready, perhaps, in a decade or so, for a new war, but not ready to-day. And in that unreadiness lies a hope for peace that is often overlooked.

The Very Idea!

BRIGHTER BOWLS

By George

THE Colony bowling championship having almost reached its final stages we print to-day a letter from an enthusiastic reader who would like to see the thrill of the game reproduced in journals. Thuswise.

WORMHUNTER BOWLS A WICKED WOOD.

Blackjack Lacked Legs
In Hectic Fight

UNBIASED REPORT.

Willie Wormhunter rose to unsurpassed heights last night when he outshot Bertie Blackjack in the tearaway final of the singles championship before a hundred crown-green fans at the Hljackers Venue last night.

Winning the toss with a coin hastily borrowed from one of the reporters, Willie elected to kick off with the sun behind him and his first wood tore up the green to smash the jack into the nullah amidst frenzied cheers.

Playing inspired bowls in the absence of his wife who was attending the funeral of her mother, Willie caressed the jack time and again with dainty woods while Bertie continually failed with close cannons or losing hazards.

At the tenth head Bertie sliced his tee shot and was bunkered behind a divot kicked up by Willie. The silence could be heard for miles around. Willie was then two up with ten to go.

The Crowd Roars.

At half-time Blackjack lodged an unpopular appeal for falling light but Willie countered on the plea that the lemons were sour.

"The match goes on!" roared referee Hampton amidst the hurricane applause of the frantic fans.

Pale and drawn the contestants toed the line for the final stanza, a slight argument over Willie using Bertie's mat being decided by the referee who found that the mat belonged to him.

Blackjack laid four woods round the jack and one on top in the seventeenth head and it looked all up for Wormwood Scrubs but Willie, whirling a wasp-like wrist, dribbled from the wing to crash the shot in the bottom right hand corner.

Overcome by excitement Blackjack fell flat on the fairway but his supporters fanned him with the tape measure to such tune that he came out of his corner at the eighteenth session to protest against leg theory allegedly adopted by Willie.

Willie dexterously wooed the jack in the twentieth and final head when Blackjack double faulted his first shots, sent up a wide and a no ball and then found himself snookered by a molehill which the club's mascot had been working on for the last two days.

"Too bad," said the hilarious Willie to our representative as he went up for an interview and a drink. "I would have won easier if I had brought my mallet."

EVA AND THE MAN.

Self-starting cars have been a great innovation but we think the old type of automobile which could be better described as self-stopping, took a great deal of beating from the point of view of the pleasure-owner-driver.

Nowadays we just let the bus peter out and lean luxuriously back on the new upholstery to get an arm round the girl with the remark: "I expect the engine's a bit hot dear. It'll be all right in a minute." Whereupon the girl lifts up the bonnet and after a cursory glance comes back to report "Mookey ploogs!"

This is one of the reasons we have never had a car, the other reason being that we could never get a girl to go out with us if we had one. Having a "never-never" girl in a car bought on the never-never system is a combination we couldn't face.

Of course the "now" traffic installation really decided us against a car after we had failed to borrow the money or learned to drive. We visualised a majorist waiting on the rubber mat patiently counting thirty seconds for the tenth time while on the opposite mat stood a couple of pedestrians keeping their feet dry during their conversation. On the other road a ricksha boy stood explaining the system in broken Hoklo to an English-speaking Swiss lady while opposite him two tired coolies had laid a wardrobe, a table, and the best part of a house on the mat in order to take a rest.

We wondered just what would happen if they all saw red at the same time.

"Oh, dear, I never have a minute I can call my own."

MUITSAI CASES

TWO WOMEN FINED TO-DAY

Leung Ying, a married woman, of No. 10 Sui Wah Fong, was fined $15 by Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning, for keeping an unregistered mu tsai.

Inspector Fraser, of the S.C.A., said the girl was presented to defendant's mother for $125 and passed to defendant as part of her dowry. The girl had been very well treated.

Defendant was also summoned in respect of another mu tsai but she pleaded that the girl was her aunt's grand-daughter.

The summons was accordingly adjourned seven days for inquiries to be made.

Ho Po-lin, married woman, of No. 66 High Street, was fined $10 for a similar offence.

Sub-Inspector Fraser said that the girl had been very well treated by defendant, and had expressed a wish to remain with her. She would, therefore, be allowed to remain as a domestic servant receiving wages.

CORRESPONDENCE

Hawkers' Obstructions

To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.

Sir,—In reply to "Pedestrian's" letter on hawkers' obstruction in your paper of last night, I don't think "Pedestrian" knows of the very serious obstruction he can see in many other parts of the Colony. When I finished shopping at the China Emporium recently, I left by the back door off Stanley Street, intending to buy a newspaper, but going to the wrong side, (the west side) between Cochrane Street and Graham Street. I noticed many hawkers' stalls. The street is about 20 feet wide, and the hawkers lay out their cooking utensils on both sides of the street, while they even eat in the middle of the street, thus making it impossible for pedestrians to pass through. The result was that I was forced to return to the east side of the street and get my newspaper at China Building. The spot referred to is one of the worst places for obstruction I have ever seen.

YOUNG RUSSIAN BANISHEE

RETURNS TO COLONY WITHOUT PASSPORT

Valdemar Alexandrovitch Kelt, a Russian, 26 years of age, who had previously been expelled from the Colony, appeared before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning, charged with having entered the Colony without valid passport, and was fined $250, or three months' hard labour.

Detective Sergeant Mottram told the Court that Kelt was seen by Sergeant Glassenoff in the Public Library on Monday last. Kelt had been fined $15 and ordered to be expelled on February 17, and the Government had paid $25 for his passage back to Shanghai. He was sent away on February 20 by the Hakone Maru.

Defendant said he was passing through Hongkong on his way to Canton. He previously had a British visa for Canton and thought it would be valid for Hongkong.

Mr. Hamilton: Is he entitled to go to Canton?

Sergeant Mottram said that, strictly speaking, he could not go without a transit visa. Kelt had been in the Colony for two days, and had been sleeping on the Star Ferry launches. He thought he could get a job in the French Police in Canton, but up to the time of his arrest he had made no attempt to get there.

INTERESTING STATISTICS CULLED AT WIMBLEDON

POINTS AND SERVICE SCORES IN THE LEADING MATCHES

COMPARISONS SHOW LITTLE BETWEEN THE PLAYERS

A record was kept of the number of errors and winning shots scored by Miss Jacobs and Frl. Aussem in their fifth round singles match at Wimbledon. The statistics make an interesting study.

Miss Jacobs, always a firm believer in defence as the basis of one's game, conceded 17 errors only in 14 games, and of this number several could with justice be credited to Frl. Aussem as winners. It was sometimes difficult to decide whether a shot from Frl. Aussem should have been given to the German lady as a "winner" or debited to Miss Jacobs who got her racket to the ball but failed to make a good return. Details:—

Miss Jacobs: First set, 6 errors; 6 winners. Second set, 11 errors; 10 winners.

Frl. Aussem: First set, 20 errors; 4 winners. Second set, 10 errors; 7 winners.

PERRY v. WOOD.

A record of service aces was kept during Perry's match against Wood in the semi-final. The American sent over 33 deliveries in his service games which Perry could not steer back into court, eight of these service aces being clear winners which were not touched on their way to the stop-netting. Perry scored outright in service 25 times, two only being clean winners. Many of these services Wood covered easily enough but hit them into the net or elsewhere. These figures indicate that Wood's fine service was largely counter-balanced by Perry's own effective delivery which, if not quite so severe, was good enough to score almost as heavily. The details were:—

Service Aces.

1st set	2nd	3rd	4th	5th
Perry	8	5	4	5
Wood	5	7	8	7

Double faults: Perry 7, Wood 6.

POINT SCORE.

The point score of the Perry-Wood match also provides interesting statistics. Perry won 149 points against Wood's 148. The closeness of these figures is probably accounted for by the large number of games won to lose or to 15 when Wood was serving; he won 7 games to love, and 9 games to 15. At the end of the fourth set Wood was leading by 124 points to 120. Details:—

1st Set (Perry serves)	4-1 4-2
2nd Set (Perry serves)	4-1 4-2
3rd Set (Perry serves)	4-1 4-2
4th Set (Perry serves)	4-0 6-1
5th Set (Perry serves)	4-0 6-1

Total: Perry 149 points, Wood 148.

CRAWFORD v. SHIELDS.

The match between Crawford and Shields was in many respects a battle between the cannon-ball service of the American and the ability of Crawford to withstand his rival's big delivery. The statistics of the match show that Shields scored 37 times with his service, whereas Crawford, rarely going out for an ace, managed to make Shields err on his return of service 29 times, 11 being in the fifth set. Shields won four of his service games to love and three with the loss of one point.

Service Aces.

1st set	2nd	3rd	4th	5th
Crawford	8	4	4	2
Shields	8	6	8	7

Double faults: Shields 7, Crawford 4.

POINTS SCORE.

The point score of this match reveals that Shields was leading by 123 points to 119 at the end of the fourth set, and in the fifth scored 30 points to 32. The total point score was Crawford 149, Shields 153.

First Set (Shields serves) 7-9 2-4 4-1 4-0 6-1 4-1 7-6, equals Shields 38 to 25.

Second Set (Shields serves) 4-2 1-4 2-4 4-1 1-4 2-2 4-0 8-6, equals Shields 34 to 27.

Third Set (Shields serves) 2-4 1-4 1-2 4-0 2-4 1-4 4-2 0-4 0-4, equals Crawford 32 to 25.

Fourth Set (Shields serves) 6-4 2-4 4-0 2-4 1-4 0-4 2-4, equals Crawford 32 to 20.

Fifth Set (Crawford serves) 4-1 2-4 1-4 4-0 5-3 4-2 5-3 0-4 4-1 4-2, equals Crawford 33 to 30.

MISS ROUND v. MISS JACOBS.

Only six points separated winner and loser of the ladies' singles final. Miss Round had a balance of six points in hand in the first set against Miss Jacobs, lost the second set by 31 points to 34 and won the third by 30 points to 27. Details:—

First Set (Miss Jacobs serves) 4-1 2-4 2-4 3-5 4-1 2-4 5-7 5-7, equals Miss Round 33 points to 27.

Second Set (Miss Jacobs serves) 4-2 4-2 4-0 0-4 5-3 0-4 4-2 4-1 2-1 4-2 4-1, equals Miss Jacobs 31 points to 31.

Third Set (Miss Jacobs serves) 2-4 4-0 4-2 3-2 4-1 3-5 3-5 2-1, equals Miss Round 30 points to 27.

Totals: Miss Round 94 points, Miss Jacobs 88.

SWIMMING TRIALS

LAWRENCE WINS TWO RACES

Roza Pereira Beaten

W. Lawrence, the Colony's short distance swimming champion, swam two beautifully-judged races yesterday afternoon to win the 100 Yards and the 440 Yards at the Interport Swimming Trials held at the V.R.C. bath. In both events, he just defeated L. Roza Pereira.

Lawrence's powerful last lap proved much too good for the rest in the 100 Yards, for which five entered. Besides Lawrence, there were L. Roza Pereira, E. B. Roza, A. A. Roza and H. L. Ozorio. E. B. Roza led for nearly three quarters of the distance, but cracked up in the last length to allow Lawrence and Pereira to pass him. Lawrence's time was 59.3/5 secs.

The 440 Yards was a fine race, the thrills being supplied by Lawrence and Roza Pereira. Other entries were A. A. Roza and J. Roza. A. A. Roza led for the first six lengths, with Roza Pereira a foot behind and Lawrence two yards further back. J. Souza was never in the race.

A. A. Roza and Roza Pereira led in turn up to the 16th length (the race was over 10½ lengths), but Lawrence was content to lie back, biding his time. Lawrence moved up in the 16th and soon caught up A. A. Roza. Roza Pereira was now leading by three yards, but Lawrence's superior speed soon lessened the distance between the two swimmers and allowed him to touch the tape two-fifths of a second ahead.

100 Yards: 1. W. Lawrence (59.3/5); 2. L. Roza Pereira (60.3/5); 3. E. B. Roza (61); 4. A. A. Roza (61.1/5); 5. H. L. Ozorio.

440 Yards: 1. W. Lawrence (5 mins. 45.1/5); 2. L. Roza Pereira (5 mins. 45.3/5 secs.); 3. A. A. Roza (5 mins. 58.1/5); 4. J. Souza.

NOTHING IS WRONG WITH CRICKET

ONLY PLAYERS OF LONG AGO SIT IN JUDGMENT

PRESENT DAY GAME DEFENDED BY LONDON CRITIC

Just at the moment, when there are murmurs in the air of cricket no longer being what it had been in the grand old days when spectators fried eggs in their top hats; when it is said that batsmen are allowed by obsolete laws to score far too many runs; and when tears for the bowler are dropped by some who, perhaps, never reacted to the joy of striving, over after over, to beat a batsman on a pitch of the striker's choice, there has been played a cricket match—and a county match—which cheered the soul of all those who were privileged to see it, writes a special correspondent of the London Observer.

The match between Kent and Surrey, at Blackheath, in a victory for Kent by four wickets, was assuredly a remarkable game. It was characterised throughout by alternations of fortune, in which first the bowler and then the batsman, or a combination of both, kept the crowd wondering what was to come next. But it did more than that: it so obviously provided enjoyment to those who were playing in it. Even when Woolley was hitting the ball unmercifully hard, and, later, when Chalk and Todd regained their side's lost advantage, the Surrey bowlers and fieldsmen, tolling in a great heat, were fully in the game. Sapdham, for instance, who had a deal of trotting around to do, with that gesture of his which lifts his cap to the back of his head, as if to appeal to the bowler to spare him just for a few minutes, was still hopeful that Kent wickets would fall.

It was a game in which every single person was taking the keenest interest, and may it be said it was not alone of its kind. It is the fashion to decry modern cricket, more especially in a dry season, which must produce big scores, but he would be a clever man who could improve upon it.

It is the privilege of many who have seen cricket played for more than fifty years to proclaim to younger men that the game is not what it was in their day, but one wonders sometimes whether they appreciate the gradual development which has taken place in the game. And must it be assumed that all changes are for the worse? We know that the placing of the field, the general method of attack (more especially with the new ball), and many another point in technique have advanced since the days of Fuller Pitch, in the same way as the genius of Walter Lindrum, the perfection of Bobby Jones, and even the time in which an athlete can run any certain distance, teach us that we live and learn. Why, then, is it assumed that cricket is not on the up-grade? Go where you will—travel down in a train from London to Leeds and watch the games being played at the foot of slagheaps—and I defy anyone to produce one vestige of a reason to prove that any vital point in the game should be tampered with.

GAME IS AS GOOD AS EVER.

THE L. B. W. LAW.

The law of cricket as it affects the matter of leg-before-wicket crops up perpetually. Those who are in favour of an alteration to the law are almost invariably to be found among cricketers who have now ceased to be active. Quite properly, they believe that in their day batsmen, and it is to be noticed that they are generally batsmen who fling a challenge down, commanded more strokes than we see in these days. In a spirit of disgust and contempt for the modern player, and in a charitable frame of mind to the bowler whom in their own day they would have depressed to zero point, they suggest that the ball pitching outside the off-stump, which would have hit the wicket but for the interposition of the batsman's pads, should be deemed to have taken a wicket.

Apart from the tremendous difficulty which an umpire must suffer to decide when a ball is turning back sharply whether or not it would have hit the wicket, is it fair to give sentence of death against a batsman who was attempting the accepted and normal stroke to the off? Is there to be a difference established in the mind of the umpire as to the occasion when the batsman was attempting a scoring stroke and when he was merely covering up? Woolley an astute observer would have seen twice in two overs move his feet across to the bowling of Gregory at Blackheath, making no attempt to play the ball, but making sure that the ball should not break on to his off-stump. But surely no one would suggest that Woolley has made it imperative that the laws of cricket should be altered?

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

In a production of such dramatic intensity as "Dreyfus," it is not to be expected that there should have occurred as many funny incidents—usually connected with unheeded effects—as characterized the making of the average film. One such incident, however, which occasioned the hilarity of every one on the set, except the individual most concerned, happened during the filming of the little scene in which Dreyfus, outside his hut on Devil's Island, expresses his emotion on hearing that he is to be sent home for re-trial. This was "shot" in a corner of set in which flourished most realistic specimens of the cactus plant and prickly pear, complete with spines, made by the ingenious property department of British International Pictures. Amid the hushed silence of everyone on the set, Cedric Hardwicke, who portrays Dreyfus in the film, commenced speaking his lines, while the cameraman rotated the handle of his machine. Everything was going beautifully, when suddenly the star's soliloquy was interrupted by a loud exclamation, agonised as well as unauthorised, which was duly repeated on the "talkie" receiving apparatus. It came from the gentleman at the camera, who had unexpectedly been painfully punctured, in an anatomical region not usually mentioned in polite society, by one of the business-ends of a cactus plant, as he stepped back to bend over his machine. The scene was, of course, re-filmed. Another un-rehearsed incident occurred one late afternoon when the key of the handcuffs which fettered the wrists of "Dreyfus" was mislaid, and he had to remain shackled in his dressing room for some considerable time. "Dreyfus" which is the authentic and poignant film record of the famous espionage case which proves truth stranger than fiction, is now showing at the Alhambra Theatre.

"Jennie Gerhardt"
B. P. Schulberg's film version of "Jennie Gerhardt," the famous novel by Theodore Dreiser, has been booked for the King's Theatre, where it will open on Thursday. Sylvia Sydney, petite brunette star, plays the title role, with Donald Cook, Mary Astor, H. B. Warner and Edward Arnold heading the supporting cast. Marion Gering, who directed Miss Sydney in "Madame Butterfly" and "Ladies of the Big House," also directed "Jennie Gerhardt." The film is the second in a series. Miss Sydney is a Dreiser heroine. She was Roberta in his "An American Tragedy." As in "An American Tragedy," she is a tragic figure, a woman caught by forces far beyond her ability to battle. She wins the love of a noted politician, he is killed in a railroad wreck before their child is born. She gets work as personal maid to a wealthy young woman, her beauty has the same influence on the latter's brother. With him she finds real love, and their years together are blissfully happy. But when he discovers what she has concealed from him during this time that she has a daughter, he turns from her. In the events that follow, she insists on sacrificing everything to her love. The picture was made with great fidelity to the novel, which was published, though it has since been hailed as one of the greatest portrayals of a woman's character ever produced by an American writer.

"The Invisible Man"

H. G. Wells' imagination, James Whale's direction and expert acting on the part of a large cast of distinguished stage and screen actors make Universal's "The Invisible Man," which is showing at the King's Theatre, the most striking picture seen for years. How Universal managed to put this extraordinary story on celluloid remains one of the mysteries of Hollywood, because throughout all of the exciting reels, things happen so incredibly that one is prone to shake his head and blink his eyes to look again. Naturally, with such a wonderful idea and theme, something beyond ordinary proportions was expected, but nothing so astounding as this uncanny film. Somehow, the treatment given this weird tale by R. C. Sheriff, who is credited with the screen play, makes the picture entirely reasonable and not fantastic in the least, and the expert characterizations lent by Claude Rains in his picture debut, William Harrigan, Gloria Stuart, Dickey Digges, Henry Travers, Una O'Connor and Forrester Harvey, enhance this effect of entirely logical occurrences, although the menace of the unseen is present always.

JUVENILE OFFENDERS.

WHAT IS BEING DONE AT REMAND HOME

Behind a grey wall on Causeway Hill is the Juvenile Remand Home, in a building erected in 1900 as the Bellillo Reformatory.

The Home now houses juvenile offenders of the Colony and it was for this purpose that the Government took over the premises in November, last year. Inspector C. P. Fallon, formerly attached to the Criminal Investigation Department of the Police Force for many years, is in charge of the Remand Home.

On an invitation extended by the Inspector General of Police, Press representatives visited the Home earlier in the week, and were conducted on a tour of inspection.

Inspector Fallon is assisted by a Chinese sergeant and seven constables, mostly for the escorting of offenders to and from the Police Courts.

The maximum term of confinement at the Home is six months. At present there are 37 Chinese and one Indian lad serving different terms. The most prevalent offenders, it was learned, were snatchers.

At the Home the boys, some of whom are without parents or relatives, are taught to read and write, and three lectures of an hour each per week are given, two by Probation officers and one by a visitor from the Chinese Y.M.C.A.

Fine Basket Work.
Basket work is the main industry. The handicraft of the youths is indeed remarkable. They make rattan chairs, waste paper baskets, fish baskets, school baskets, foot stools, rattan stands, Chinese tea pot baskets, Chinese travelling baskets, flower baskets and useful letter holders. The lads in this department are under a rattan instructor.

The goods may be purchased by the public and small orders may be placed with the Police Department. The work may be seen on Tuesdays and Thursdays of each week from 3 to 5 p.m. The prices for the articles range from ten cents to $1.40.

The offenders are well cared for. On the ground floor there is a sick bay, comprising three beds. Any boy not feeling well is kept under observation for two days and then he is sent to the Government Civil Hospital if it is necessary. There is also a special room for the treatment of scabies cases.

In Inspector Fallon's office there is a medical cupboard which is well replenished with first aid equipment.

Blankets in Summer!
On the ground floor there is also the boys' mess room, wash room, where they bath, and wash their own clothes, a store room and a class room. On the first floor are the dormitories, one for boys serving between four and six months, and another for the overnights. The dormitories are looked at 8 p.m. and a constable is in attendance.

It was surprising to learn that even on the hottest day during the past few months some of the lads slept under blankets!

Each day the boys rise at 6 a.m., and at 6.30 they go downstairs for exercise for one hour. Breakfast is served at 8 o'clock. After breakfast they have a free hour and at 9 a.m. one party starts on basket making until noon, while another party is set to work cleaning the home for the same period. These duties alternate from week to week.

At noon, the boys get congee and from 12.30 to 2 p.m. they have school. From 2 to 4 p.m. basket-making is continued, while a lecture is also held from 2 to 3 o'clock. This occurs three times a week, and when there is no lecture the boys are exercised.

The evening meal is served at 4 p.m. after which they roam about in the garden or in the compound in front of the building. Volley ball and other games are played. At 6.30, they wash and then go

LORRY COLLIDES WITH PRIVATE CAR

The Police are looking for a lorry driver who disappeared shortly after 3 p.m. yesterday, after being involved in a collision with an Austin seven, No. 1784, at the junction of Shanghai Street and Public Square Street, Yau-matli.

Five persons, including three women, were in the Austin seven, which belongs to Mr. Tang Po-sai. Fortunately nobody was hurt, beyond a severe shaking.

Both lorry and private car were severely damaged, the latter getting the worse of the impact. According to a Police report, the private car was proceeding from north to south along Shanghai Street, when it collided with lorry No. 377, which was going towards Nathan Road on Public Square Street.

Immediately after the accident, the lorry driver disappeared.

The driver of the private car reported the matter to the Yau-matli Police.

upstairs until dark when they turn into bed and the dormitories are locked.

Parents Visit.

The Home is doing a great work. The boys are free from 2 p.m. Saturday to Monday morning. On Sundays parents are allowed to visit them. Some of the lads, when arrested, are reluctant regarding their parents; but when they see their comrades being visited by mothers and fathers they break down, and the "dead" parents come to life!

None of the boys at the Home are first offenders. Many who have served three months' terms are mindful of their repentance and have never returned. On the other hand, there are youth who are incorrigible and present the Home with problems.

Handcuffs are unknown to the offenders, and the atmosphere of prison life is reduced to a minimum.

CANADIAN BREWER KIDNAPPED

U.S. GANGSTERS
CHANGE GROUND

$150,000 RANSOM
DEMAND

London, Ont., Aug. 14.
The clutching hand of kidnappers, which has recently developed into a serious social menace in the United States, is extending across the border into Canada.

One of the wealthiest brewers in the country, Mr. John Labatt, was abducted by a gang to-day while motoring between London (Ontario) and Sarnia.

Details of the outrage became known when a note was delivered at his home demanding the immediate payment of ransom.

The note was signed by an individual describing himself as "Three Fingers Abe" and it demands the payment of $150,000 within twenty-four hours.

The victim of the outrage, Mr.
John Labatt is sixty years of age.

PINNED TO CAR.
The United Press says that the note demanding $150,000 ransom was found attached to Mr. Labatt's automobile, which was left abandoned on the roadside.
The affair is Canada's first major kidnapping.

STELLA BENSON ESTATE

$5,800 LEFT IN HONGKONG

The local estate of the late Stella Anderson, better known as Stella Benson, the well-known novelist, has just been disclosed at $5,800. She died on December 6 at Hongkong Hospital, Tonkin, and formerly lived at Pakhoi.

Letters of administration have been granted to Mr. J. T. Prior, solicitor, of Messrs. Wilkinson &
Grist.

PEAK DOG QUERY

SOLICITOR NOT SATISFIED

Before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning,
Mr. T. P. K. Kemble, of Messrs.
Wilkinson & Grist, was fined $10 for allowing his dog to be without a muzzle on the Shek-O bench on July 1.

Mr. J. T. Prior, of Messrs.
Wilkinson & Grist, was summoned for having allowed a black alsatian to be without a muzzle at the junction of Lugard Road and Harlech Road on July 28.

Defendant pleaded not guilty to the summons, saying he would like to hear the constable on what kind of a dog it was.

An Indian constable then gave evidence, saying he noticed the animal near the Upper Peak Tram station. He followed it and it went into house No. 26 in Lugard Road. He spoke to the servants there, and then Mr. Prior himself came out and gave his name.
The dog was a black dog, not a chow, with short hair and long nose.

The case was adjourned until 11.15 a.m. to-morrow for the production of defendant's dog.

BRITAIN'S FINANCES

IN COMFORTABLE POSITION

£4,000,000 SHORT OF LAST YEAR

London, Aug. 14.

Britain's financial position to-day is only four and a half millions sterling on the wrong side as compared with last year, despite the remission of taxation and the restoration of the cuts.

In the last week, incidentally, receipts exceeded expenditure by nearly £6,000,000.

Exchequer return of receipts and expenditure during the current financial year up to August 11th, shows that, excluding self-balancing items, the total ordinary revenue receipts last week amounted to £10,865,745 and the total ordinary expenditure to £4,912,492.

Income tax collected during the week amounted to £3,643,000 and Customs and Excise represented
£4,050,000.

The total yield of ordinary revenue for the financial year to date is £205,097,480, as compared with £207,668,091 collected in the corresponding period of the previous year. Ordinary expenditure to date is £255,819,570 which compares with £253,729,882 at the corresponding date of 1933.—
